ROOSEVELT SAILS TO SEE FLEET OFF

President, Flying Flag of Commander in Chief of Navy, Leaves the Capital for Hampton Roads.

LAST DAY IS STORMY.

Second Blow Kicks Up Choppy Seas in Anchorage, but Many Visit the War Dogs to Say Farewell.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, acting in his capacity of commander in chief of the United States navy, tonight is far on his way to give the order on which the big battle fleet in Hampton roads will begin its long voyage to the Pacific ocean.

As the ships pass out to sea their last farewell will be from the president. On the deck of the Mayflower he will lead the ships through the Virginia capes, then give way to the flagship Connecticut as the double line of sixteen ironclads set their course to the southward.

Thus will begin what the president has planned as the supreme test of the American navy. The announced destination of the fleet is San Francisco bay, but when and where the cruise ultimately will end seems as yet undetermined.

Interesting Scenes at Wharf.

The scene at the departure of the naval yacht Mayflower, with the president and his guests, was an interesting one. The Mayflower was spick and span and spotless in white; the jackies, in their winter garb of blue, lined the rail, and the cheerless raw day seemed to lend itself to an expression of their feelings at being left out of the big trip.

Secretary and Mrs. Metcalf were piped over the ship's side half an hour before the arrival of the president.

A few minutes, following the arrival of the secretary, Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Newberry embarked; then followed Rear Admiral and Mrs. Brownson and Commander and Mrs. Sims.

In a White house carriage preceding the president came Miss Ethel Roosevelt, Miss Corrine Robins, and Miss Hagner. Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cowles rode with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

As the president stepped aboard two minutes after 3 o'clock the flag of the commander in chief was broken out at the main yard. In five minutes the Mayflower was under way.

Salute to Greet Commander.

The Mayflower is expected to reach Hampton roads by 8 o'clock in the morning, when a salute of the entire fleet will be given and the ceremonies of the departure begun.

These include a reception by the president on the Mayflower of the commanding officers of the ships of the fleet and the departing review. The president will not leave the Mayflower during the trip, and is expected to reach Washington on his return early Tuesday morning.

Stormy Day for Farewells.

Fort Monroe, Va., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Anything but favorable weather marked the last day before the fleet of sixteen battleships will start from Hampton roads on their voyage to the Pacific coast. A second storm followed the one of yesterday, having come across from Tennessee, and the result was high winds and choppy seas in the roads today.

To add to the unpleasantness fog also prevailed, which made traveling between the ships and shore hazardous.

However, launches made frequent trips between the vessels and landing pier at Old Point Comfort, bringing ashore officers and taking their families and friends out to the war dogs.

Many pathetic scenes took place during the day. One particularly noticeable was on the flagship. An aged woman, who came from a small town in Connecticut, asked permission to go aboard the Connecticut to say good-by to her boy, who was one of the crew of the flagship.

A launch was placed at her disposal and she boarded the Connecticut. A young man was called from among the crew. He threw both arms around his mother's neck and the pair embraced each other for fully a minute, and the jackies standing by reverently lifted their caps.

Wives and Sweethearts Fill Hotel.

The Chamberlin hotel was headquarters for the wives, daughters, and sweethearts of the officers. They did not desire to go out to the ships in the rough weather and the corridors of the hotel were crowded with brilliantly uniformed officers and daintily gowned women, making the scene one of striking contrast to the gloomy weather outside.

There was a constant buzz of voices all day in the big hotel as farewells were exchanged and godspeed offered the departing heads of the navy's fighting ships.

When the officers returned to their respective vessels tonight it was for the last time, since they will not come ashore at Old Point again.

Start Will Be Impressive One.

Weather conditions late this afternoon gave promise of a fair day tomorrow. No matter what the meteorological conditions are, they will not interfere with the set program, which is that the signal "get under way" will be flown from the flagship immediately upon the return of the commanding officers from the Mayflower.

As each ship passes the Mayflower the national salute will be fired. Every vessel will be "dressed" in all her bunting, the marine guard will be drawn up, the jackies will be lined up on deck and in the fighting tops, and the band will play as the vessels slowly head for Cape Henry and out to sea.

Sailors Hear War Articles.

Shore liberty for the sailors ended at 10 a. m. today and at that hour the enlisted force of each ship, numbering nearly a thousand men to the company, was lined up at quarters to listen to the reading of the articles of war.

The men seemed deeply impressed, as they were also with more personal words which came in orders from Admiral Evans, the commander-in-chief, and from the rear admirals on board the three divisional flagships.

Every man was told what his duty was to his country, to his flag, and to his superior officers. They were cautioned to up-

STRANGE SLEUTHS IN CLUB CRUSADE

Detectives Seeking Violations of the Sunday Law Disowned by Both Farwell and Cruice.

FIND UNION LEAGUE DRY.

Prosecutions of the Saloonkeepers Will Be Resumed Today in the Municipal Court.

With the trials of the saloonkeepers scheduled to be resumed today, the Sunday closing crusade took a mysterious turn yesterday. Sabbath bar sleuths, mysterious in their operations and more mysterious as to their affiliations, appeared in unexpected quarters in search of evidence of the violation of the tippling house law.

Clubs and restaurants were the scenes of the activities of the latest aggregation of law enforcement people. The Union League was the only club they succeeded in getting into and there they found the bar closed and no drinks being served. At several other clubs they were denied admission by the doormen.

The sleuths had an easier task in the restaurants. In a score of cafés in the loop district the detectives secured evidence that drinks were dispensed on Sunday.

Just what body of the "forces that make for good" the detectives represented remains a mystery. They were disowned by Arthur Burrage Farwell and the Chicago Law and Order league, and by Daniel Cruice, the attorney who is conducting a more or less mysterious prosecution of the downtown hotels for selling liquor on Sunday. The Law and Order organization did no sleuthing during the day. This was in pursuance of a decision to abandon the gathering of evidence until a conviction is secured.

Shortly after noon a pair of lynx eyed, wary individuals walked briskly into the Union League club and gained the clerk's desk before the doorman could intercept them. While one of the men engaged the clerk in conversation the other peered into the club parlors, where half a dozen men were seated in conversation. No drinks were in sight.

Union League Buffet Closed.

After finding it impossible to penetrate farther into the clubhouse the detectives informed the clerk that they were doing a little Sunday closing crusading and they would like to look into the buffet.

"Go as far as you like," replied the clerk.

The detectives wandered all over the clubhouse in their search for violations of the law. They found the buffet closed and deserted. They scrutinized a number of members breakfasting in the café, but no intoxicating drinks were to be seen. Then the sleuths departed, complimenting the clerk on the strict observance of the law.

At the University club the detectives were told by the doorman that only members and members' guests were admitted, and they left without getting across the threshold. They did not attempt to get into the Chicago club, but it was reported they gained admission at the New Illinois Athletic club. The doorman said he had not seen anybody answering the description of a sleuth. At the Chicago Athletic club the doorman knew nothing of the pair.

Just what restaurants were Piperized is not known. It was reported to an official of the Hotelkeepers' association that evidence was being gathered in a score of cafés within the loop and in most of the restaurants there was no difficulty in having drinks served either with or without food.

Mr. Cruice declined to explain what he was doing. The hotelkeepers believe he is representing the liquor dealers who would like to see the hotels, clubs, and cafés pulled into the boat with themselves. The hotel cases will come up for trial Jan. 6.

Piperizing of saloons was confined to Englewood, where E. J. Davis, vice president of the Englewood Law and Order league, gathered evidence. He reported eighteen places in Halsted street and two in State street were open.

United Societies on Both Sides.

Arthur Burrage Farwell confined his activities to the rousing of public opinion on the liquor question in an address he made before a meeting in the afternoon in Avondale Methodist Episcopal church. He urged every one present to write a letter to Mayor Busse demanding the closing of the saloons on Sunday. This meeting was advertised in a startling manner. Handbills, which were widely circulated, bore this heading:

SUNDAY'S GOING DRY.
THE UNITED SOCIETIES.

Then in smaller type beneath it was brought out that the meeting was under the auspices not of the United Societies for Local Self-Government, the anti-Sunday closing organization, but of the "United Societies of Epworth Leagues, Christian Endeavor, Baptist Young People's Unions, Men's Bible Classes, Law Enforcement Leagues, and the Combined Churches of Chicago."

At a meeting in Ravenswood Methodist Episcopal church Charles W. Trickett, assistant attorney general of Kansas, described for the fifth time in this city how he has "put down the demon rum in his home state" and how the same can be done in Illinois if his advice is followed.

Trials to Be Resumed Today.

In spite of the setback given the cause by the disagreement of the jury in the first of the Sunday closing cases Saturday night the state's attorney will go on with the prosecution of the saloon keepers today. On account of the ill health of Judge Fake Chief Justice Harry Olson has assigned Judge Arnold Heap to hear the remainder of the first batch of fifty-eight cases. Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northrup will be the public prosecutor, assisted by Attorney Raphael for the Law and Order league.

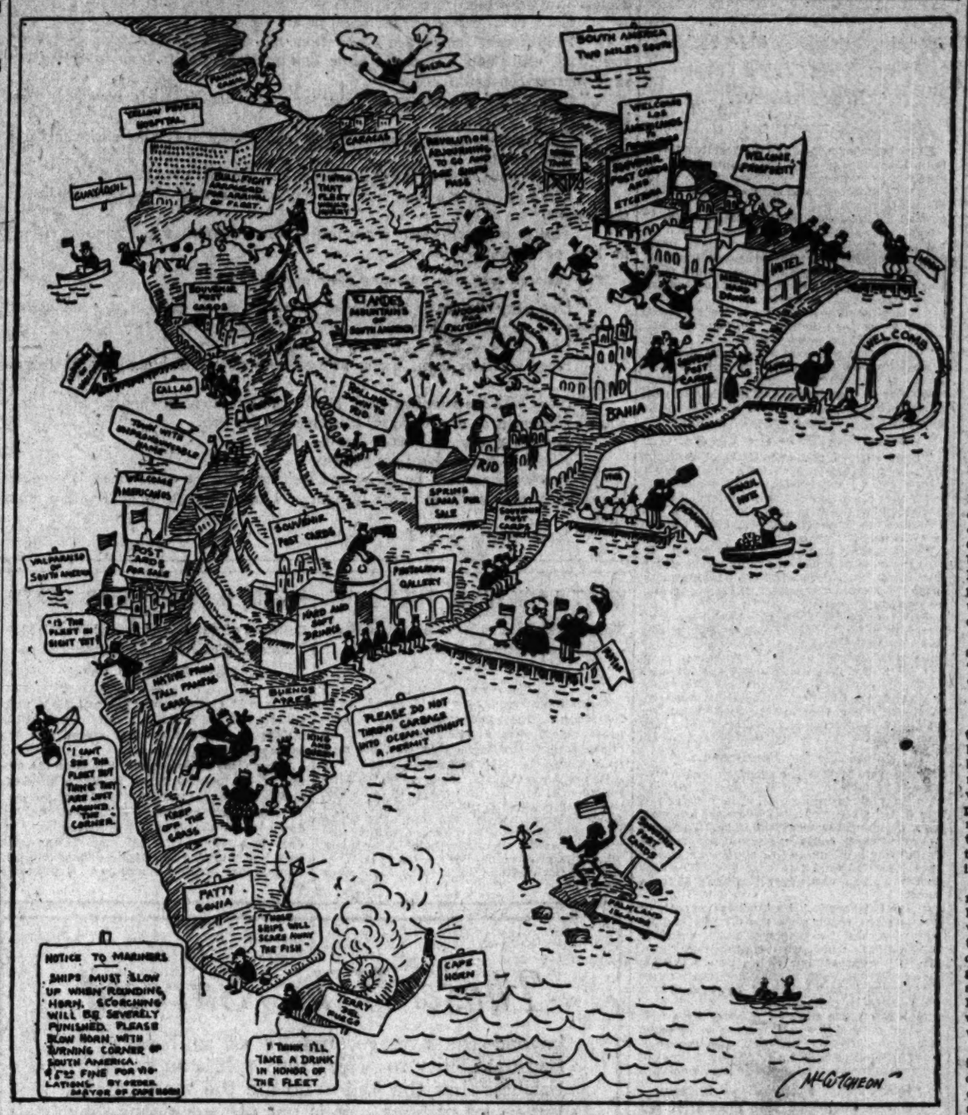

The Tom Chamales case, in which the jury disagreed, will not be tried again at present. The case to be put on trial today will be either that of Hugh Daly, Cottage Grove avenue and Twenty-sixth street, or Edward Dreifus, 85 Randolph street.

Chicago Heights Lid Closed.

In Chicago Heights the lid was closed so tightly that it was impossible to buy either liquid refreshments or fruit, candy, stationery, milk, or staple groceries.

Every dry goods and grocery store, fruit and news stand, milk depot and saloon was locked up. Restaurants and livery stables were ordered closed by Mayor L. H. Hook, and warrants were issued for one liveryman and eight restaurant proprietors who defied the order. Drug stores were allowed to remain open for prescription business.

SOUTH AMERICA PREPARING FOR THE BATTLESHIP FLEET.

ARMY TAME; TRIES ROBBERY

Deserter from Service Captured at Head of Youthful Band.

SCORE OF HOLDUPS IN MONTH

Man Who Broke Fetters as He Fled Fort Has Brief Career of Crime.

Scorning to be a mere peaceful private in a standing army when he could be the commander in chief of a daring band of robbers, Arthur Doyle deserted the service of the United States for the more exciting and warlike occupation. For a month the operations of his raiders have kept the west side police on the move, but yesterday he and his youthful followers were hemmed in by detectives at West Madison and Halsted streets.

Doyle did not make his change of service without considerable opposition from the United States government. He entered the service in the summer of 1906 and was sent to Columbus, O. Soldier life soon displeased him and he ran away. Recaptured in May this year, he was sentenced to eighteen months at hard labor and was confined at Fort Sheridan.

Files Irons from Legs.

Again he tried to escape, but was recaptured and put in irons. These didn't hold him long. On Nov. 4 he filed the shackles from his legs, cut a hole in the roof of the guardhouse, and with a companion named Frank Kaba escaped.

They disguised themselves with army overcoats and took along a rifle and five rounds of ammunition. They walked to Chicago, then separated, and Doyle soon afterward organized his outlaw band.

"I would have remained and taken my medicine," said Doyle, after his arrest, "but they almost starved me to death. They made me do hard work and did not feed me enough to keep up my strength. Now, I suppose I will go back and get worse."

Robbers Are Mere Boys.

The gang arrested included Doyle, who is 22 years old; Milton Gaines, aged 21; James Ginty, aged 19; and Joseph Connell, aged 20. All are said to live in a rooming house at 438 West Madison street.

The capture was by Detectives Callaghan, Monoghan, Shea, and O'Keefe of the Warren avenue station.

The prisoners admitted five holdups and two burglaries in the last few days. The most spectacular was the robbing of a boarding house in the afternoon of Thursday at 849 Warren avenue. Ginty and Doyle entered the house and found Charles E. Burnap sitting at a desk reading.

Ginty slipped behind him and held his arms while Doyle, for want of a rope, tore down some lace curtains and used them to tie his victim. They got a watch and $75 in money and escaped.

Four Attacks in One Night.

Wednesday night the gang was exceptionally busy. In Franklin boulevard they tried to hold up Henry Myers, 135 Albany avenue, and Thomas J. Henley, 1616 Carroll avenue. The men showed fight and Ginty fired two shots at Myers, both penetrating a dinner pail he was carrying. The men succeeded in beating off the youthful robbers. Dr. D. J. Griffin, 72 Sacramento avenue, was held up at Fulton street and North Sacramento avenue and robbed of $45. Dr. M. Guerin, 261 Spaulding avenue, suffered a like fate at West Ohio street and North Sawyer avenue, and was relieved of a watch and $90 in cash. A. F. Homma, 212 North Albany avenue, was held up just as he was about to enter his own house and a watch and $50 taken.

They are suspected of a score of other robberies.

Robert Burton and Lester Nichols, the two boys who were captured Friday night at Fulton street and North California avenue, are said to have belonged to the same gang.

UNION POTATOES AND BEETS? ORGANIZED LABOR SIDESTEPS

Discussion Ends When Delegate Suggests "Heaven and Whoever Turns On Water" Must Be Converted.

What is a union potato and what constitutes "unionism in a beet"—a plain, ordinary beet of the common or garden variety? This is the question which confronted delegates to the Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday when Secretary Ed Nockels read a communication to the effect that a union market, the Equity exchange, 270 West Randolph street, had been established with the purpose of supplying organized labor with all sorts of food.

Delegates scratched their heads and wondered if the millennium of organized labor had come.

"How are we to know that we are getting a union potato or ham?" asked one delegate. "Will the potato bear the union label or will it carry a union working card? Of course, we want to unionize the earth, but if the potato is made under union conditions we have got to get an organizer equipped with wings in order to unionize heaven and whoever turns on the water."

President Fitzpatrick ended the discussion by declaring that he didn't exactly know what a union potato might be or what virtues it might possess superior to "scab" potatoes.

POISON CANDY FROM CHICAGO ALMOST CAUSES GIRL'S DEATH

Box of Sweets Received Thanksgiving Day by Miss Margaret Sterns, Chicago Girl, Now in Denver.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Poisoned candy received on Thanksgiving day almost killed Miss Margaret E. Sterns, who recently came to Denver with her brother William from Chicago. The box of sweets delivered to her bore no mark to show the identity of the sender. She is not fond of candy and laid it away until last Friday night, when she ate two pieces, and soon became violently ill. Doctors this afternoon pronounced her out of danger.

The brother left for Chicago tonight, and will try to find the sender of the candy. He says:

"The box of candy came from some one in Chicago, who evidently kept track of her movements. I haven't the least idea who the sender could have been. I remember seeing the address on the box and think the handwriting was a woman's. I am positive my sister was poisoned by the candy, and believe had she eaten more she would be dead. I intended starting to Chicago Friday night, and she brought out the candy when I called to say good-by. Her sudden illness detained me. If she has an enemy in Chicago I do not know it."

EPSOM SALTS AN ANÆSTHETIC: ROCKEFELLER INSTITUTE TEST

Discovery to Be Announced Soon as Result of Experiments at Plant for Medical Research—No Danger to Heart.

New York, Dec. 16.—Announcement of the discovery of a new anæsthetic soon will be made by the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

The new anæsthetic is nothing else than plain epsom salts, or to give it its scientific name, sulphate of magnesia. It was discovered by Dr. Samuel J. Meltzer, one of the Rockefeller experiments. Its greatest value is that it permits any sort of an operation without any danger to the heart of the patient.

Either local or general anæsthesia, it is said, may be produced by the injection of a 20 per cent solution of the familiar drug into the nerve tract governing the sensations of the part to be operated up-

SAFE LOOTED; CASHIER HELD

Albert Rathyen Suspected of Complicity in Robbing an Office.

BREWERY COMPANY IS LOSER

Door Evidently Opened by Some One Who Knew the Combination.

Albert Rathyen, cashier of the Fred Miller Brewery company, 145 North Western avenue, is under arrest on suspicion of complicity in the theft of $3,000 and valuable papers Saturday night from the safe in the company's office. No instruments were used in opening the safe, and the only person beside Rathyen who knew the combination to the safe is said to be William Volbert, president of the Chicago branch of the company, the main offices of which are in Milwaukee, Wis.

Indelible pencil marks were found on the combination knob and these cause the police to believe the person or persons who opened the safe were guided by these marks, placed there by some one in the office.

Robbery Discovered by Woman.

The robbery was discovered at 7 o'clock yesterday morning by Mrs. Hans Meyerbeck, who lives above the offices. She and others living in the building heard no noise during the night. Four doors had to be opened before the safe could be reached, and duplicate keys are believed to have been used.

When Mrs. Meyerbeck entered the offices she found the outer door of the heavy safe ajar. The strong box had been taken out, emptied, and thrown beneath a desk. Papers, of no value to the robbers, were strewn upon the floor.

Mrs. Meyerbeck notified August Salzgeber, a clerk in the place, of her discovery. He then summoned Thomas Cermek, another clerk, and then summoned by telephone Mr. Volbert, who lives at 1177 Washington boulevard.

On his arrival Mr. Volbert made a hurried examination of the offices and safe and then notified the police. Lieut. Custy and several detectives went to the place.

Cashier Taken Into Custody.

None of the four doors in the building gave indications of having been opened by force and the police decided that someone familiar with the office was responsible. Lieut. Custy conferred with Volbert and Rathyen's arrest followed.

Rathyen, who lives at 413 Elm street, denies the charges. He said he left the office at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon after he had closed the safe. At that time there was $360 in gold coin, $500 in clearing house checks, and between $1,500 and $2,000 in bills in the safe. There was also a bunch of certified checks, the amount of which, he said, he does not know. He has been with the company less than a year.

Lieut. Custy said Rathyen would be held until a further investigation could be made.

"I believe the robbery was committed, or at least planned, by some one connected with the office," he said. "Rathyen, though, says that when he went to work at the place he wrote the combination on a piece of paper and that he afterward lost it. Some one may have found it."

TRAMPS BAREFOOT IN SNOW.

George Gadyale Says He Has Walked 428 Miles Since Nov. 28 in Search of Work.

George Gadyale, 19 years old, has established a record at long distance barefoot walking, if the story he told the Stockyards police yesterday is true. He said he was a laborer in a steel mill at Pittsburg until Nov. 28, when he was discharged, and since then has walked 428 miles in search of work. Half the distance he traveled barefooted.

UNITE TO RID CITY OF WHITE PLAGUE

Campaign Against Disease Opens at Free Dispensaries Today; 3,500 Deaths a Year in Chicago.

TRAINED NURSES READY.

Experts to Visit Patients in Their Homes and Instruct Them How to Combat Consumption.

The great white plague, which causes more than 3,500 deaths in Chicago every year, is to be attacked in a new and, for this city, novel campaign.

Special departments for tuberculosis will be opened today at the free dispensaries conducted by the Rush, Northwestern, Policlinic and Hahnemann Medical schools, the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and the United Hebrew Charities dispensary. At Rush and one or two other of these dispensaries consumptives already have been treated in a preliminary way for several days.

The medical institutions were interested as a result of the activity of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute and its new superintendent, Alexander M. Wilson.

Deaths on the Increase.

The institute has been in existence for three years and during that period its work has been directed chiefly along educational lines. The alarming increase in the death rate from consumption in this city, which was 215 more last year than it was the previous year—due, according to Health Commissioner Evans, mainly to lack of ventilation in dwellings—has caused the institute to adopt more vigorous methods in combating the disease.

The unfortunate victim of tuberculosis, no matter how poor he may be and regardless of the stage of the disease, will receive valuable advice regarding the out of door treatment and diet and exercise and medicine when it is needed. The man or woman given up to die, unable to move to a more salubrious climate, need not give up hope. If the patient is not too far gone the institute will afford him accommodations at the Edward sanitarium, near Naperville.

The sanitarium, which has been in existence since last June, and has treated successfully forty-seven patients, has room for only twenty-six at the present time. The active campaign against consumption by the institute provides for increasing rapidly the capacity of the sanitarium to 100 or more.

Nurse at Each Dispensary.

But the real work, it is expected, will be accomplished at the dispensaries. The institute will supply a trained nurse at each of these, who will assist the doctors during dispensary hours and visit and instruct the patients in their homes. The chief effort will be to place each patient under the modern out of door treatment, which has been found the only successful one in fighting the disease. Under the direction of the nurse porches, flat roofs, and rear yards will be fitted up as sleeping quarters.

Physicians specially qualified to diagnose and treat tuberculosis have volunteered their services. The plan has the enthusiastic support of the medical profession, including the commissioner of health.

Where the Sanitariums Are.

The new dispensaries, with their hours for treating patients, are as follows:

Chicago Policlinic hospital dispensary, 176 Chicago avenue—Tuesdays and Fridays, 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

Central free dispensary (Rush Medical college), 757 West Harrison street—Wednesdays and Saturdays, 11 a. m. to 12 m.

West side dispensary (College of Physicians and Surgeons), West Congress and Honore streets—Tuesdays and Fridays, 11 a. m. to 12 m.

West side dispensary of the United Hebrew Charities, Morgan and Maxwell streets—Mondays and Thursdays, 3 p. m. to 5 p. m.

South side free dispensary (Northwestern University Medical school), 2431 Dearborn street—Mondays and Thursdays, 10 a. m. to 12 m.

Hahnemann hospital free dispensary, 2811 Cottage Grove avenue—Mondays and Thursdays, 2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m.

Pointers from Eastern Cities.

"The opening of these special tuberculosis dispensaries," said Supt. Wilson of the Tuberculosis institute, "places Chicago on the level with eastern cities, where this work has been going on for some time. In New York there are ten such dispensaries, one conducted by the department of health. In Philadelphia Henry M. Phipps, the steel magnate, gave to one an endowment of $1,000,000. The Chicago Tuberculosis institute has profited by the experience of the other cities and starts out with a central organization of the dispensaries which gives promise of placing this city quickly in the front rank in this method of dealing with the white plague.

"The vital element that makes the special tuberculosis dispensary so effective in its work is the nurse. She is with the patient when the physician gives his instructions for treatment, goes to the patient's home and shows him how that home can be transformed into a tuberculosis sanitarium. The treatment of tuberculosis is largely a right manner of living, and is, essentially, an abundance of good food and rest in the open air. These conditions can be secured even in homes in the congested parts of the city. It is here that the nurse becomes invaluable, suggesting and helping to carry out plans to utilize the resources at hand that would never occur to the patient.

Nurses Wear No Uniforms.

"The nurses do not wear uniforms while making their visits, so that their presence does not give notice to the neighbors that a consumptive is in the house.

"She carries with her a supply of paper handkerchiefs, etc., which she instructs the patient to use in order to prevent his infecting others. A large share of her work is of this preventive nature.

"The nurse urges the children and adult members of the patient's family to report at the dispensary for examination. The fact that the rest of the family have been living intimately with a consumptive, who up to this time has not been instructed in preventive measures, makes it highly important to learn at once whether any have been infected. Often the patient has been sleeping in the same room, even in the same bed with others.

"All this will be changed if an efficient and tactful nurse, who comes into the home as a friend, can persuade the family of the dangers in such close association with a consumptive. When the nurse secures the adoption of the preventive measures she teaches the patient becomes a safe person to live with.

"Most persons who die from consumption would have lived had they fought the disease intelligently in time. There is no need of any one dying from consumption. The most common symptoms are cough, gradual loss of flesh and strength, fever, night sweats, and blood expectoration. Any one of these signs is suspicious.

"The cough is often absent in the early stages of the disease, the symptoms being such as to lead one to suspect that he had stomach trouble, general debility, or various other ailments. Only an examination by a trustworthy physician should satisfy one, and this will be furnished by the free dispensaries cooperating with the institute."

Within a few days there will be ready for distribution throughout the city circulars of advice. These include suggestions not only to consumptives but to those free from the disease but liable to become infected.

In its regular weekly bulletin the health department indorses formally the campaign to stamp out consumption.

PHTHISIS CAUSES DEGENERACY?

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—That insanity, criminal and immoral tendencies, idiocy, and the entire reversal of previous mental poise and moral standards are conditions that may accompany tuberculosis, either in its incipient or chronic stages, medical science now claims to be a certainty. Dr. Lawrence F. Flick, expert tuberculosis physician, and Dr. D. J. McCarthy, expert criminologist, both of more than national reputation, have just made known discoveries resulting from investigations they have been making for several years at the Henry Phipps institute in the treatment and prevention of tuberculosis.

According to the discoverers even devout persons may become immoral and degenerate, honest men turn thieves, optimists become pessimists, and strong, healthy minded men change into inebriates with little or no sense of moral responsibility. And these conditions may take place long before any sign of tuberculosis is apparent.

Insane Before Tubercular.

"An impoverished state of blood," says Dr. McCarthy, "is partly responsible for the delusions and hallucinations experienced by so many tuberculosis patients. In a case for years under my personal observation at the Philadelphia General hospital, there were delusions accompanied by various homicidal attempts. Another case was that of a man who developed insanity almost a year before tuberculosis made its appearance.

"While in the House of Rest in New York City, one man, who subsequently became one of our patients, insisted that poison was being placed in his food. He attempted to assault and threatened to kill the superintendent.

"Still another claimed that he was in the habit of receiving communications from his father, whom we afterward found had been dead for several years. Another insisted that his dead father came to his room at all hours of the day and night and wrote messages on the walls with a piece of straw. Another saw queer pictures when awake, and one woman was continually calling our attention to the procession of people dressed all in white constantly before her."

Heritage from Insane Parents.

Not only has science established the fact, according to these experts, that in at least 50 per cent of tuberculosis patients insanity shows itself in some stage of the disease, but that, conversely, vast numbers of tuberculosis patients have been predisposed to lung infection through inherited deficient nervous systems. In many cases insanity has been found to have existed in the parents or antecedents of tuberculosis patients.

While not willing to admit that their work is anywhere near complete, the investigators are now in a position to state positively that there is an undoubted connection between mental unbalance and tuberculosis and vice versa. Drs. Flick and McCarthy have for three years kept daily records of each patient's physical and mental condition from the day of entrance until discharged or dead. In addition to this the history of the patient's family and antecedents has been procured wherever possible.

DIPHTHERIA IS ON THE DECLINE.

Scarlet Fever Also Shows Falling Off from Alarming Figures Last Month.

Scarlet fever and diphtheria, from which certain districts of the west side suffered last month, are decreasing, according to the weekly bulletin of the health department. The December mortality rate so far is lower than in the corresponding period for ten years.

Pneumonia heads the list as the chief cause of death with 101, the highest since last spring. Consumption stands second with forty-two.

During the first three months of the school year the medical inspectors have examined 212,842 pupils and have excluded temporarily 4,400 because they were a menace to the health of the other children.

LATE KING OSCAR EULOGIZED.

Tribute Paid to Memory of Deceased Ruler by Swedes and Norwegians in Chicago.

Memorial services in honor of the late King Oscar II. of Sweden were held in a number of Swedish Lutheran churches yesterday and in Orchestra hall in the evening.

More than 2,500 Chicago Swedes attended the night meeting. John R. Lindgren, Swedish vice consul in Chicago, presided. An address in English on "King Oscar as a Monarch," was delivered by Dr. G. A. Andreen, president of Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill. Dr. Andreen said King Oscar's attitude in the Norwegian-Swedish crisis earned for him the title of the "peace king."

Arthur Donaldson read a poem written by King Oscar, entitled, "Farewell to the Fatherland." The closing address was delivered by Prof. A. J. Carlson of the University of Chicago, who spoke in Swedish on "King Oscar as a Man."

Immanuel, Salem, and Gethsemane Swedish Lutheran churches sent a message of condolence to Queen Sophie. Services were held also in Our Savior's Norwegian Lutheran church, the Rev. Alfred Johnson and the Rev. B. E. Bergeson officiating.

The merits of the controversy between the mine operators and mine workers will be exhaustively investigated and the whole matter embodied in reports to be made to the war department and to President Roosevelt.

DR. J. W. OSWALD PASSES AWAY.

Chicago Physician, Who Dies After a Long Illness, Survived by Widow and Son.

Dr. J. W. Oswald died yesterday after a lingering illness.

He was stricken with paralysis while operating on a patient in the Alexian Brothers' hospital on Oct. 30, 1905. The stroke was the result of overwork and came without warning.

He was 44 years old and was a graduate of Rush Medical college, class of '87. After serving two years in the hospitals he commenced general practice. He was born in Bloom, now Chicago Heights, and was a son of Louis Oswald, who came from Germany and settled in Chicago in 1854.

A widow and a son, 8 years old, survive him. He lived at 1949 Deming place.

OBITUARY.

MRS. HARRIET M. LYONS, who died Saturday night at her residence, 1702 Sheridan road, will be buried this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Graceland cemetery. Mrs. Lyons was 75 years old and had been a resident of Chicago for thirty-five years. She was the widow of Jonathan M. Lyons, a veteran of the civil war, and is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Etta M. Streeter and Miss Birdie Lyons.

ANXIOUS TO DROP CHARGE OF GRAFT

Women Who Accused Policemen of Blackmailing Them in Fear of Persecution.

VAIN APPEAL TO BARCAL.

Captain, Backed by Chief Shippy, Says Trial Board Must Hear Evidence.

Since learning that John P. Atchinson, the man they accuse of blackmailing them, is really a city policeman, Kitty Price of 68 North Clark street and Maud Rogers of 120 North Clark street have made an unsuccessful attempt to withdraw the charges.

The women said they thought he had merely pretended to be a policeman until they saw him in uniform at the Chicago police station Saturday morning, and they pleaded with Capt. F. P. Barcal to drop the case, but the official refused.

"Every member of the police force will get angry at us for peaching," said the women, "and we will be persecuted."

"These charges must stick until the trial board thrashes them out," replied the captain. "We will not have men of that character on the force, and if either of you, or your friends, get into any sort of trouble growing out of these charges let me know."

Sorry She Made the Charge.

"I am sorry I made the charge," said the Price woman yesterday. "I didn't know he was a cop. I told the captain I would willingly give $25 to be out and away from it now. Atchinson was not in uniform when he approached me Monday night, and I didn't know he was a policeman."

The Rogers woman could not be found. It was reported that she was "out of the city." Atchinson has absented himself temporarily from the house of his sister, 142 Howe street, to escape annoyance.

Evildoers of the north side have been subjected to a form of blackmail for some time, but this is the first instance where a policeman was directly accused. Atchinson may not be guilty, but the charges are founded sufficiently well to have caused Inspector Anson Backus to remove his star, suspend him, and report the case to Chief Shippy for trial. The women signed the complaint under commission.

Held Up by Bondsmen.

Heretofore it was the regular nightly routine of policemen from that particular station to pick up numerous women infesting the district. Sometimes there were as many as a dozen under arrest at once. The prisoners always could procure their release from some accommodating bondsman, usually a "professional" in that line. The cost to the woman was never less than $3 for a bond.

Judge Petit made it his business recently to get in close touch with the district and its habitués, and he gathered much valuable information. He learned that certain "outsiders" were getting rich through the arrests of these women, and that the women frequently were "held up" by persons who claimed to be policemen.

He cut off one form of revenue by establishing a rule that all women so arrested should be released on their own recognizance. Subsequently he fined one fellow $50 and costs for pretending to be a policeman.

"Graft Must Stop," Says Shippy.

The men connected with the station felt that a reflection was being cast upon them and each appeared to make it his special business to seek the blackmailers. The Price woman was "held up" twice and the Rogers woman, arrested more than once, was treated likewise. A general investigation resulted in the suspicion against Atchinson, who has been on the force about a year. The Price woman says he got $5 from her under threat, and that on a previous occasion he tried to "shake her down." The Rogers woman says he got all she had—$3.

"I don't know anything about the case except what Inspector Backus told me," said Chief Shippy, "but I am willing to bank on his judgment. I can only say that the force will be purged of every grafter just as soon as we get the goods on them."

YARMOUTHS STIR PITTSBURG.

Rumors of Divorce Suit Against Earl Set Tongues Wagging in Former Home of Bride.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Information from Europe that Countess Alice of Yarmouth was about to enter suit for divorce against the earl has caused a great wagging of tongues in Pittsburg. Such a move has been expected for some time, but the details of the troubles, which have beset the scion of the house of Thaw, are just now coming out. Yarmouth and his Pittsburg bride, whose people paid $1,000,000 for him while the crowd waited at the church, have never agreed, and their incompatibility has become a matter of international gossip, as the youngest child of old William Thaw has a temper of her own. Pittsburg friends are advised that the pair have not been living together for one year.

RULES FOR CONSUMPTIVES AND OTHERS; HOW TO STAMP OUT CONSUMPTION.

In connection with the free dispensary campaign planned against tuberculosis, the following suggestions are made in circulars to be distributed widely:

"If you have consumption, go to a doctor or to a dispensary. If you go in time, you can be cured. If you wait until you are so sick that you cannot work any longer, or until you are very weak, it may be too late.

"Don't drink whisky, beer, or other intoxicating drinks. They will do you no good, because they give you false strength and in the end ruin the stomach and the appetite for food, and make it harder for you to get well.

"Don't waste your money on patent medicines or advertised cures. Avoid doctors who advertise.

"Good food and rest in the open air are the best cures.

"Protect your family and others from the disease by destroying everything you cough up. You will at the same time protect yourself from breathing the same consumption germs again.

"Expectorate into pieces of paper or paper handkerchiefs and burn them in the stove.

"Don't cough, sneeze, laugh, or talk loudly close to another's face, because this will carry germs.

"Don't cough without holding a paper handkerchief over your mouth.

"Don't sleep in the same bed with any one else, and, if possible, not in the same room.

"The careful and clean consumptive is not dangerous to those with whom he lives or works.

For the well man, the following rules are laid down:

"Don't expectorate on the floor or sidewalk; set an example to consumptives by using the gutter or cuspidors.

"Live in the open air as much as possible.

"Keep windows open, winter as well as summer, at home and where you work.

"Sleep with the windows open, but be sure the body is warmly clad. Fresh air, whether moist or dry, warm or cold, is good for you.

"Breathe through the nose; breathe deeply.

"Avoid dust and dusty occupations.

"Never stir up dust by sweeping; sprinkle water or moist sawdust or moist bits of paper over the floor before sweeping. Dusting should be done with a moist cloth.

"Never neglect a cold or cough."

WANT BACK RINGS THEY GAVE.

Young Men Said to Have Attacked Girls When Latter Refuse to Go to Hotel.

Rocco Brambos, 23 years old, who lives at 106 Ewing street, and James Damata, two years older, were arrested last evening on charges made by three girls that the men tried to induce them to go to a hotel. The girls are Anna O'Mara, 15 years old, 365 Austin avenue; Martha Leiberger, 18 years old, and Minnie Eichald, 16 years old, 555 North Paulina street. They said that after visits to a theater and a photograph gallery the men purchased rings for them. Afterward, when the girls refused to go to a hotel, they say the men attempted to take their rings by force.

HIRAM H. CODY NEAR DEATH.

Collapse of Former Judge of Fourth Illinois Judicial Circuit Attributed to His Advanced Age.

Hiram H. Cody, former judge of the Fourth Illinois judicial circuit, is seriously ill at his residence at 213 Sixty-first street, and his recovery is not expected.

Judge Cody occupied the bench on the circuit which included Kane, Du Page, Kendall, Lake, McHenry, and De Kalb counties.

He is nearly 84 years old and the breaking down in his health, which occurred last Friday, is attributed to old age. He and his wife had intended to celebrate the sixty-first anniversary of their marriage on New Year's eve.

HORSE RECLINES TO BE SHOD, RESTING HEAD ON A HAY BAG.

New Jersey Animal Waves Four Hoofs in Air Whenever Brought Into the Smithy for Operation.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—George Candeld, a milk dealer of Caldwell, N. J., owns a horse which lies down to be shod, and, putting its head on a bundle of hay and holding its feet in the air, makes itself comfortable during the operation.

It was while the last snow was on the ground that the animal adopted this method. One day it had been slipping and stumbling over a thirty mile route and was tired out. It was led to Arlington Russell's smithy to have its shoes roughened, and as soon as the blacksmith raised its hoofs it lay down with its hoofs in the air.

Russell attached the four shoes while the animal was in this position. Since then every time it has been necessary to roughen the shoes again it has lain down the moment the smithy was reached. Russell now brings a bag of hay and places it under the horse's head for a pillow.

DUCKS FIND NEW USE FOR ICE.

Flock of Muscovies Owned by Long Island Farmer Takes Delight in Skating on Frozen Pond.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Ezekiel Crawford of Northport, L. I., has a flock of Muscovy ducks which accidentally have invented a new game. They were in the habit of flying from the barn to a duck pond on Crawford's farm and entering the water with a rebounding splash.

When winter arrived and the pond was coated with smooth ice the ducks flew from the barn as usual. Nearing the surface of the pond they extended their feet and quit flying, evidently expecting to splash into the water. They did nothing of the kind. Their feet slipped out from under them and they sat down hard and slid swiftly across the ice until they bumped against the frozen shore.

"Quack, quack!" said the ducks, and hurried back to the barn to try it again. The result was the same. Again and again they are said to have tried the stunt.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Although the lid was on, much Sunday trading was done in Omaha today. Groceries, meat markets, and candy stores were closed, but cigar and drug stores and many billiard and pool rooms were open as usual.

Newsdealers and stationers, in most cases, obeyed the law, but newsboys did a thriving business on the street, with piles of newspapers and magazines stacked up on street corners.

Commencing at midnight Saturday, with editors, reporters, and mechanical employés of the daily newspapers, the police took the names of all Sunday workers, and warrants will be issued Monday for their arrest.

Interest centered in the theaters, whose course promised to have much to do with the action of other places of business. All the Omaha theaters were open for matinées and night performances as usual. The names of all managers, ticket sellers, doorkeepers, and stage foremen of all theaters were taken and warrants for their arrest will be issued.

If the test cases go against those who have been listed by the police, and it is decided they must pay fines for violation of the Sunday law, more than 2,000 citizens of Omaha will be arrested and fined. In that case the minimum revenue to the city from fines will be $30,000, and the maximum possibly $50,000.

Charles E. Fields, editor of the organ of the Retail Liquor Dealers' association, who made a demand on the mayor for absolute Sunday law enforcement, said tonight that so far as he could see the police had done their full duty.

"Every person who violated the law," said Fields, "may be fined. And he will be subject to another fine if he opens his place of business again next Sunday. This means business if it means anything."

Elmer Thomas, attorney for the anti-saloon league, said tonight:

"I am not interested in this Sunday closing. My work is confined to the saloons. The action of Mr. Fields was an entirely retaliatory measure, and the anti-saloon league will do more now than ever to compel public officers to enforce the saloon laws rigidly."

Injunctions Help in New York.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The frisk-iest highway in New York tonight was old Fourteenth street between Broadway and Third avenue. For the first time in a good quarter of a century Fourteenth street was the sporting hub of the town.

Tammany hall, darkened and padlocked a week ago by the police, echoed tonight to the scraping of fiddles and the insistent call of Mr. Beauty McGlynn, announcer for the Horseshoe club. "Four more couple and get a move on, ladies and gents!" There was a dance at Luchow's, by right of injunction, and the merry sound of voices and tapping of feet.

Seventeen public and private ballrooms flashed injunction papers in the faces of inspectors and were not interfered with, but the police made trouble for every dancing academy that opened without the benefit of the judiciary.

Walter Damrosch changed his mind about holding the New York Symphony orchestra concert at Carnegie hall. The four hundred and twenty-sixth act of a problem play at the Chinese theater in Doyer's street, "Gow Lap, or Mandarin's Pearl," had to go over to a weekday, and Chinatown was as dull as mud.

Brill & Fox, who run a nickel moving picture establishment at 68 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, were pinched so many times today the desk sergeant got tired of making blotter entries.

Four men of the Ebling Social club, who were arrested as Sunday was beginning, were later arraigned in the Yorkville police court. The charge against them was violation of the Sabbath law by having a dance in a public hall. Magistrate Crane dismissed them.

Law Ignored in Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 15.—Only two theaters, the Willis-Wood and the Majestic, respected the Sunday closing order of Judge William M. Wallace today.

The manager of the Majestic has notified Judge Wallace that the Majestic will remain closed until the legality of the Sunday closing movement is finally decided, and it is believed that Klaw & Erlanger, who own the Willis-Wood, will no longer resist the enforcement of the Sunday closing order.

All other theaters and amusement parlors were open, and deputy marshals again secured the names of all alleged violators of the law.

Judge Wallace today delivered an address from a pulpit in which he scored the police commissioners for refusing to instruct the police to coöperate with him in the Sunday closing movement.

New Orleans Almost Dry.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 15.—To secure an alcoholic drink in New Orleans today, identification of some sort was necessary. Those who could produce satisfactory proof as to intentions were admitted past saloon doors, many of which were otherwise securely locked.

Some saloons closed entirely for the first time in years.

Today's strict observance was caused by an order of Police Inspector Whittaker to his men to make arrests whenever they saw violations.

Only Saloons Closed in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Everything was wide open in St. Louis today except the saloons, and no attempt was made by any of the religious or other organizations for the enforcement of any closing measure. The law was directly responsible for one death. A man whose wife placed some ammonia in a beer bottle drank it at dinner and died. He did not live long enough to explain.

Troy, N. Y., Obeys Law.

Troy, N. Y., Dec. 15.—All theaters and places of amusement in Troy were closed today for the first time in observance of the Sunday law to that effect.

BLOW FOR TOTAL ABSTAINERS.

Bavarian War Department Reports That Sharpshooters Have Better Aim After Taking a Drink.

MUNICH, Dec. 15.—A severe, because unexpected, saloon blow at the advocates of total abstinence from alcoholic beverages has been struck by the Bavarian war ministry, which has issued a report showing that in independent rifle shooting soldiers become better marksmen after imbibing a small quantity of alcohol than before. In field and volley firing, however, the sections which had been abstemious attained slightly better results than their stimulated comrades.

Wagon Still Partly Filled with Snow as It Leaves Dump.

[From a photograph taken for THE TRIBUNE.]

The photograph, which shows how slackly and with an eye to prolonging the work the teamsters employed by the city did the work of street cleaning, was taken from a window of the Victoria hotel yesterday afternoon. About every fourth or fifth wagon that passed on return from the dump had a load as large as that shown in the picture.

LOW BORN BABE A MARQUIS

Childless French Noble Adopts American Infant as His Own.

IS A "CARROLL," 'TIS TRUE.

But Is Son of Irish Country Girl, and Not of Old Virginia Family.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Instructions were received today which doubtless will result in an American child of obscure and unsanctified parentage falling heir to the title and estates of marquis de Montferriers, the scion of one of the richest and most distinguished families in France.

The marquis and marquise de Montferriers were without an heir. They were desirous of adopting a child and being admirers of American children decided a babe of American parentage would best preserve the traditions of their house. They communicated their intentions to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jenkins, one of the first families of Baltimore. Mrs. Jenkins enlisted the aid of her sister, Miss Lowe.

Look for Suitable Child.

It was planned that the search for the babe should be kept a profound secret. Miss Mary Bowie Johnson, a descendant of Gov. Oden Bowie and a leader in Baltimore society, who is a friend of Miss Lowe, was intrusted with the secret and invited to participate in the search.

An advertisement inserted in a Baltimore paper furnished a clew to a baby. Correspondence developed the fact Mrs. Baker of Winchester had inserted the advertisement. Miss Lowe and Miss Johnson went to Winchester and called on Mrs. Baker, who showed them a beautiful babe. He was a healthy boy with blue eyes and auburn hair.

Mrs. Baker stated that William Fairfax of collateral descent from Thomas, Lord Fairfax, was the child's father, and Elizabeth Carroll of the Carrolls of Carrollton, was the mother.

Word of the location of a babe who fulfilled so well the requirements demanded by marquis de Montferrier was sent to him. He replied that he was overjoyed, and gave orders that the babe be brought to France with all possible dispatch.

Discovery Comes Too Late.

Among friends to whom the marquis and his wife revealed their secret was a man residing in France who was connected with the Carrolls of Carrollton. When told of his probable relationship to the babe he made inquiry concerning the parents. When this was given he vouchsafed the assertion that deception had been practiced.

Marquis and marquise de Montferrier were well-nigh overwhelmed with grief. They had adopted the babe and there was no retreat from the position they had taken. It finally was discovered that the child's mother was Fannie Virginia Carroll. It was established that she was not a Carroll of Carrollton. Instead she was a country girl of humble Irish parentage.

MORE DELAY IN TRACTION DEAL.

Consent of Some New York Interests Still to Be Obtained to Latest Settlement.

The present traction plan is to ask Judge Grosscup, when he opens the United States Circuit court this morning, to take up the final order in the Union Traction case, then postpone the hearing for one and probably two days, so that everybody can be consulted regarding the settlement the attorneys have been working on so industriously since last Tuesday.

FIRE SHOWS LAW VIOLATIONS

Damage Results Solely from Disobedience of City Ordinance.

SO AN INSPECTOR DECLARES.

Floor of Building Congested and Means of Escape Inadequate.

Fire which did $1,000 damage yesterday afternoon in the building occupied by Garibaldi & Cuneo, at State and South Water streets, could have been extinguished with little or no loss if the firm had not violated the building ordinances. At least that was the assertion made by Fire Inspector McDonnell.

The fire originated in a refrigerator on the second floor. When Battalion Chief Buckley and other members of the department arrived, the flames had reached an elevator shaft and were ascending to the upper floors.

Blocked by Winding Stairs.

The firemen with difficulty reached the single stairway in the building, but there they met with a greater obstacle, a narrow, winding flight of stairs.

After several attempts they decided that it was impossible to carry leads of hose to the upper floor by the stairs. Then they sought the fire escapes and found others were using the one escape outside of the building and had entered the upper floors with leads of hose.

Floors Are Congested.

Meantime the flames had spread to the third floor, but a company that had reached the roof confined them to the shaft. A few minutes' work on the second and third floors extinguished the fire.

"The floors were congested with merchandise. There was only one fire escape and one twenty inch stairway," Fire Inspector McDonnell said.

GATES WINS $500 ON RAINDROP.

Bets One Globule of Water on Pullman Car Window Will Beat Another to the Sash—It Does.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—John W. Gates was riding with a friend and fellow plunger the other day in a Pullman car. It was raining, and the rain was coursing down the window panes. Gates watched the drops. Two were trickling down side by side.

"Bet you $500," said Gates, "that my drop reaches the bottom of the window before your drop gets there."

"I'll go you," said the other man.

First one drop was ahead, then the other. Gates' drop made a final spurt and nestled a glistening globule on the bottom sash.

"I win," said John W., pocketing the yellowbacks, which had been hastily counted out while the drops were dropping.

CHICAGO LAWYER TAKES LIFE

Fred C. Hobein Shoots Himself in a Hotel at Boston.

DISCOURAGED BY ILLNESS.

Jacob Mundors Another Victim of Despondency Over Sickness.

Fred C. Hobein, a Chicago lawyer, committed suicide by shooting himself in a room at the Quincy house, Boston, and his body was found yesterday.

He left a note which read: "Notify the Rev. Edward Hobein, pastor of the German Congregational church at Clinton, Mass."

The pastor is supposed to be a relative of Hobein, who killed himself Saturday morning.

Hobein was employed in a legal capacity by William C. Heinemann & Co., real estate agents at 92 La Salle street. So far as could be learned he was in no financial difficulties, but the condition of his health had made him despondent. He had Bright's disease and was for a time a patient at Alexian Brothers' hospital. Three weeks ago he left that institution and departed from Chicago to live in Massachusetts.

Mr. Hobein was 35 years old and unmarried. He was a native of Germany.

Jacob Mundors, 508 West Twentieth street, day by shooting himself in the head. Despondency caused by ill health is said by members of his family to have been the cause. His son Albert found the body. Mundors was 66 years old.

Chicagoan One in Double Suicide.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 16, 2 a. m.—[Special.]—Charles M. Stanton of 1685 Grenshaw street, Chicago, and Hubert Smith, a student of Marquette college here, were found self-slain in a room at the Hotel Plankinton at midnight.

Smith's body was in a chair with a bullet hole through his head. Stanton was lying across the bed with his throat cut with a razor. Both were naked.

Letters found in Stanton's pocket from a Toledo, O., tobacco concern indicated that he was a traveling salesman. No letters explaining the reason for the double suicide were found.

SNOW CARTED OFF AND CARTED BACK

Teamsters "Nurse Along" the $5 a Day Job of Cleaning the City's Streets.

WAGONS NOT EMPTIED.

Procession of Partly Filled Vehicles Noted All Afternoon Leaving Dump.

Some thrifty persons who find $5 a day for a team profitable income from the city did what they could yesterday to "nurse along" the job of cleaning up the snow from streets in the First ward.

So instead of dumping all the snow from their wagons on the wind swept lake front at the foot of Van Buren street, they would take back some of it in their wagons. The more snow, the more work, they argued.

The same interesting device was resorted to by teamsters in the regular employ of the city. These are required to take not fewer than four loads to the dump as a day's work. That doesn't look like many loads, but some of the teamsters don't get to work early in the morning and they can't always find snow awaiting them for loading. If they don't take four loads a day they are docked from one-half to three-fourths of a day's pay, just according to how the boss happens to feel.

The bottom of every fourth or fifth wagon that passed the Chicago club in the afternoon on its return from the dump, it was noticed, was covered with snow. In some cases the space under the seat was filled to the top with lumps of snow. No attempt apparently had been made to shovel it out.

Mayor Wants to Know Why.

Mayor Busse heard about the wagons later. He's an old team owner and up to the devices of drivers.

"I'll look into it as soon as I can get in touch with Ward Supt. Robert N. Cochrane," said the mayor. "They ought to have an inspector for those wagons."

Mr. Cochrane, when seen, said there was an inspector for the wagons. He didn't see how any partly loaded wagons could escape the eagle eye of this inspector. Yet there they were, an endless procession of them passing west in Van Buren street, for more loads.

Supt. Cochrane said most of the snow would be removed by evening from the streets of the First ward, which extends as far as Twenty-second street.

There were 340 teams working yesterday—most of them with a capacity of five yards each. Assuming that each team took four loads to the dumps a total of 6,800 yards of snow would have been removed from the streets by night, but as has been explained some of it went back again from the dumps.

Will Reduce Force Today.

Splashing through the mushy snow in the afternoon, cleaning it up with shovels and hoes, piling it up so the wagons could carry it away, 412 men were working.

"We'll reduce the teams to 150 in the morning and cut down the force of men in the streets to 300," Mr. Cochrane said.

Forty more teams applied for work in the morning than the department could use and more kept coming all day, indicating that many teamsters would like to pick up a little money.

Shoveler Drowns in River.

When shoveling snow into the river at La Salle avenue in the afternoon Dominick Tortorelli, 42 years old, employed by the city, slipped in and drowned. Anton Sortill, a fellow workman, attempted to catch him and he, too, almost lost his footing. The body was swept away by the swift current.

More Snow Is Predicted.

There were some snow flurries during the day. The temperature was steady, ranging from 28 to 36 degrees. More snow, a continuation of December temperature, and sharp northwest winds are predicted for the next two days.

MRS. A. W. HARRIS HOME TODAY.

Northwestern University President Will Reach Chicago with Sick Wife in the Morning.

Little hope is entertained for the recovery of Mrs. Abram Winegardner Harris, wife of the president of the Northwestern university, who became ill with cancer while visiting in Philadelphia three weeks ago. Mr. Harris will reach Evanston with the patient this morning.

THE earliest specimens of Satsuma, a rare Japanese ornamental pottery, date from only 1598, although Japanese writers give a much earlier antiquity to the ware. It was in the year named that Shaimazo Yoshihiro, a daimio of Satsuma, returned from an invasion of Corea and brought with him a few skilled potters with their implements and materials. It was then that the manufacture of pottery was begun on the Corean system in Japan with the same rough and primitive tastes as prevailed in Corea. In 1670 Mitsuhisa, Prince of Satsuma, established a private pottery and employed a celebrated painter of the name of Tangen to assist in the decorations. He produced the rich yellow glaze, only one specimen of which is known to be extant. The Satsuma pottery is distinguished by fine ivory crackled glaze, its highly artistic and unique designs in which gold is employed freely. The figures and decorations even on the smallest pieces are wonderfully uniform and regular in all their features. Some fine specimens of Satsuma were secured by one of our representatives on a trip to Japan and may be found in our Artware Section on the Second Floor.

BERLIN SCANDAL GETS NEW AIRING

Second Trial of Editor Harden, Which Begins Today, May Expose Court Cabal.

TENSION IN HIGH PLACES.

Ministry of Justice as Prosecutor Will Call Eulenberg and Others.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—The effort of Count Kuno von Moltke to vindicate himself in the trial which resulted from accusations made by Maximilian Harden, editor of Die Zukunft, having failed before the minor court, the case will now be taken up by the state's attorney before a criminal bench of five judges.

The second trial of Herr Harden will begin tomorrow, and fresh revelations are awaited keenly by the public, because it is believed that much new testimony will be brought out concerning the so-called camarilla surrounding the emperor. Prince Philip Eulenberg, count von Moltke's divorced wife, Frau von Elbe and her son, Lieut. von Kruse, are among the witnesses who will be called.

Judges May Limit Scope.

It is by no means certain that the judges will allow the testimony to take a range wide enough to elicit political secrets of court, or anything that may touch directly the person of the emperor.

The causes that have brought about a new trial by the ministry of justice are obscure, but it has been regarded by the sober part of the community that count von Moltke was not well supported in the first trial.

Declines to Compromise Case.

Whatever may have been the considerations, the ministry of justice simply wiped out the findings of the magistrate and took up the affair as if it had never been tried before, instituting proceedings against Herr Harden for having criminally wronged count von Moltke.

Efforts have been made at the eleventh hour to compromise the case, but Herr Harden declined to sign the declaration demanded by Von Moltke. The latter will be represented by Dr. Sello, one of the most distinguished advocates of the German bar, in addition to the highest state's attorney of the Berlin courts, Dr. Isenbiel.

PARIS, Dec. 15.—Gales of hurricane violence, which have been raging in France for the last two days, seem to have spent their force in the north and are now central over Spain and the Mediterranean. # DROPS $5,000,000; WOULD DIE

Louis Lombard, Musician-Financier, Fires Bullet in Head.

HIT HEAVILY IN PANIC.

Fears Lest Private Theater in Switzerland Pass from Hands.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

GENEVA, Dec. 15.—Louis Lombard, the New York financier, musician, and author, attempted to commit suicide by shooting at Lugano, where he now lies in a critical condition, with doctors attending him night and day.

It is declared that Lombard has sustained losses amounting to $5,000,000 in the American panic and that worry lest he be forced to close his private opera house caused his attempt at self-destruction.

Mr. Lombard was born at Lyons, France, Dec. 15, 1861. He was educated at the National conservatory at Marseilles. He founded the Conservatory of Music at Utica, N. Y., of which institution he remained director for some time.

When he left the United States he built a residence, the Château de Trevano, at Lugano, Switzerland. A private theater is attached to the château, and here M. Lombard has staged his own operas, sending elaborate accounts of his productions to the newspapers of the world. M. Lombard was chairman of the congress of the National Association of Music Teachers at the Chicago world's fair in 1893.

FOREIGN COMMENT ON CRUISE.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Dec. 16, 3 a. m.—British daily newspapers generally refrained from commenting editorially on the cruise of America's battleship fleet, which begins today, until this morning.

The Daily Mail today says the cruise is a movement the full significance of which will be understood only by posterity. The Telegraph is confident the American navy, in the severe test, will maintain a high standard of efficiency. It says the dispatch of the warboats emphasizes President Roosevelt's conviction of the permanence of the friendship between the United States and Europe. "Otherwise," it says, "he never would venture to send the whole available naval strength of America to the uttermost parts of the world."

The Outlook, a weekly publication, connects the departure of the fleet with "the tension that exists between the United States and Japan," and says its dispatch proves that America realizes that in event of war the Pacific ocean will be its theater.

The Sunday Observer believes the sending of the fleet to the Pacific is a warning to Japan and fears the "Americans have made a profound mistake if they presume too much on Japanese patience."

Berlin Sees Great Benefits.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, Dec. 16, 3 a. m.—Expert opinion among naval men here is that the long cruise of America's battleship fleet will be of vast benefit in solving many of the matters which heretofore have been dealt with only theoretically by the Americans.

Two Opinions in Paris.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Dec. 16, 3 a. m.—The sending of the big fleet to Pacific waters has evoked much comment in official Paris. Two divergent views are expressed. The majority of those who have voiced their opinions feel that the cruise has no deep significance and is only a practical test of America's naval resources. Others, however, fear that Japanese ambition may see an affront in the presence of the navy in the Pacific and that serious complications may follow.

CANNON BOOMERS READY FOR WORK

Uncle Joe's Candidacy for the Presidency to Be Pushed After Holidays.

M'KINLEY IS IN CHARGE.

Illinois Man Chairman of Committee Which Will Supervise Hunt for Delegates.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Immediately after the holiday recess of congress Joseph G. Cannon's presidential boom will be launched in earnest. Just what peculiar form the launching will take is a matter which the promoters of the speaker's candidacy have not definitely divulged. It will be in such a manner, however, as to let the whole country know that the statesman from Danville is a real, sure enough, never say die candidate for the political shoes of Theodore Roosevelt.

Up to the time congress convened there was not much to the Cannon boom but talk, but now it is to be a serious matter, with a hustling committee actively at work in the interests of Mr. Cannon. During the last month Mr. Cannon has with difficulty restrained his supporters from coming out into the open and pushing him to the front.

Why Hustling Was Delayed.

There were two reasons a month ago why he wanted to be kept in the background. One was on account of the fact that there was so much talk of the renomination of President Roosevelt, and the speaker did not want to be regarded as an active candidate until the president should again declare himself against a third term. The other reason was that he desired to have the matter of the appointment of the house committees out of the way before the real work in his behalf should be begun.

The first of these reasons has been overcome by the president's reiteration of his election night statement that he would not again be a candidate for the presidency, and the second will be obviated when congress shall reassemble after the holiday recess, for the committees will have been appointed before adjournment.

The speaker's friends were crowding him so hard and were so anxious to get busy that he was seriously considering the advisability of allowing Representative Clayton's anti-third term resolution to come up in the house, when the president forestalled such a movement by declaring himself.

The resolution undoubtedly would have passed, and in that event, even without the president's statement, Mr. Cannon's friends would have had an excuse for booming him as a candidate.

Boomers Already Busy.

As soon as the committees shall have been appointed the Cannon men will feel free to act. Already they have been at work on the quiet. An executive committee, of which Representative William B. McKinley of Illinois is chairman, has been appointed to handle the boom. Those who are associated with Mr. McKinley on the committee include Representatives Rodenberg, Lorimer, McKinney, Chapman, and Boutell.

Cannon organizations will be perfected in all parts of the country and the executive committee will have its representatives at work in the speaker's behalf in all of the states where there is any chance of getting delegates.

It is said that the sentiment for Mr. Cannon is overwhelming among the republican membership of the house. The plan which it is alleged the Cannon boomers will work is to have every republican congressman who has not a favorite son in his own state work to control two delegates from his own district. A congressman who cannot control two delegates from his own district isn't much of a power in politics, they argue, and if the scheme works well Uncle Joe ought to have as good a showing at the start of the convention as any other candidate.

In many districts which are now represented by democrats there are former republican members of congress, many of whom are friendly to Uncle Joe's candidacy and the same sort of an arrangement will be made with them.

National Committee to Help?

It is considered probable that the republican congressional committee will be brought to serve the purposes of the Cannon boomers. Representative Sherman of New York, who is chairman of that organization, has just been appointed a member of the house committee on rules to succeed Mr. Grosvenor, and, although he always has been close to Speaker Cannon, those connections will still more strongly cement their friendship.

In fact, the entire committee is a Cannon organization, it is said, at the present time, and will be used effectively in behalf of his candidacy.

Representative McKinley, chief boomer of the Cannon boom and the head of the Cannon executive committee, also is treasurer of the congressional committee. Representative Loudenslager, who also is a power in the committee, as well as in New Jersey, which has no favorite son candidate, also is said to be extremely friendly to the Cannon boom. The same may be said of Representative Tawney of Minnesota, chairman of the committee on appropriations.

CUMMINS FORMAL CANDIDATE.

Iowa Governor Says Senate Candidacy Determined by Enemies' Charges of Broken Faith.

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Gov. Cummins today formally announced his candidacy for the senate against Senator William B. Allison, and repeated his answer to the charge he is breaking faith in seeking the office. The novel part of his statement is the assertion that he had not up to this time determined to run, but has made up his mind so to do because of his enemies' charges. As to his having violated any pledge the governor declares he willingly leaves the question to the voters.

Wealthy Socialist Lecturer Says True Charity Is Merely Justice to the Working Man.

J. G. Phelps Stokes and his wife, Rose Pastor Stokes, gave socialistic talks last night before 700 enthusiasts in the Evanston auditorium.

"True charity is not philanthropy so much as justice to the workingman," said Mrs. Stokes. "Just to help here and there often is a source of evil. The workingman ought to receive full profits for the value he creates."

Regarding her work among the poor in the east side of New York she said:

"They love the giver, but they lose all self-respect in taking the charity. Where they were willing to work before they are unwilling later because of the charity."

To Take Leading Role in Music Pantomime

MISS ETHEL HOOPER.

'LIVING MUSIC' LEADER HERE

Joseph Lindon Smith Arrives to Manage Pantomimes.

STARTS FINAL PREPARATION

Talks "Peer Gynt," "Twilight Hour," Etc., with Chicago Women.

Joseph Lindon Smith of Boston, artist, designer, producer, and impresario of the series of musical pantomimes Chicago women and the Thomas orchestra will give on Jan. 7 and 8, arrived in Chicago yesterday.

Mr. Smith tarried for a few minutes at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, 77 Bellevue place, whose guest he will be during his present visit, and then lost no time in getting on his job. He covered a deal of ground during the afternoon. He talked "Peer Gynt" with Mrs. Watson Blair, the "Twilight Hour" with Russell Tyson, and every other feature of the unique program that has been planned. Then he hastened to Orchestra hall, collided with a Kubelik concert, refused to be thwarted by it, viewed the surroundings, and departed to do more talking with the Chicago women interested in the affair and to plan to make the Orchestra hall stage adaptable to the coming production.

Will Create Leading Part.

Along with the arrival of Mr. Smith came the announcement that Miss Ethel Hooper would create the leading feminine part in the "Jack Frost" pantomime, which will be produced for the first time on any stage at Orchestra hall. Miss Hooper, who is a daughter of Dr. Henry Hooper, 10 Astor street, will play opposite Mr. Smith himself, who, with Edward Burlingame Hill of Boston, the composer, is responsible for the piece.

Considerable work will have to be done with the stage of Orchestra hall in order that the production, which has been termed "Living Music," may be produced. Mr. Smith has fitted up a hall and stage adequate for such a production at his summer home in Dublin, N. H., and a similar design will be followed out here. It was at Dublin that Mr. Smith met Mr. and Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh and other Chicagoans who spend their summers there.

Leaders in Dances.

Plans for the various pantomimes in which Chicago society people will take the leading parts are being worked out rapidly. Miss Marjorie Chisholm and Mrs. Juliette Barrett Rublee are to be the leaders in the dances in the "Peer Gynt" pantomime, while Eames MacVeagh is to appear as Peer.

Made young by Change of Food

See below.

Any food or combination of foods that will restore vigor to the digestive organs of a person 77 years old who had been troubled with indigestion for years is worth looking into.

This Kans. woman says:

"I am 77 years old and for many years had suffered from indigestion which I supposed was caused by old age. Thought the weakened organs would never do good service any more.

"I became so weak I could hardly get about, my breath came with difficulty, I was really in a bad way. I lived as I always had, ate meat and other things that were clearly too heavy for my digestion, but I didn't know any better way.

"Five months ago I came to the conclusion that I would not live much longer without help of some kind. I was badly discouraged until one day I read about Grape-Nuts, what it had done for others, and finally I concluded to try it myself.

"Wonder of wonders, what a change it made. I eat three heaping teaspoonfuls with cream for breakfast and the same amount for supper. Of course I eat fruit and something light to make up a meal, but I can eat a hearty dinner—leaving out meat.

"How good I feel. I can do more work in a given time than for the past five years. I can walk two miles or more and can hardly believe my own senses as to the change. I did not have much faith at first, but the next thing I knew I would get up in the morning and rush around and do things so easily it surprised me. All this change is clearly due to Grape-Nuts and I am thinkful." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little booklet, "The Road to Wellville," in packages. "There's a Reason."

WILL STUDY MINE DISASTERS

Geological Survey to Establish School in Pittsburg.

MAKE WAR ON FIRE DAMP.

Hope to Solve Grave Problem by Experiments in Big Steel Tube.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—It is reported that Pittsburg is to be made the home of a most remarkable school of mines to be instituted by the department of the interior, through the United States geological survey. The great number of mine disasters happening within the last few years has caused the technologic branch of the survey to move in the matter and action has been hastened by the reference made by President Roosevelt to mine disasters in his message.

J. A. Holmes, chief of the technologic branch, has stated that work will be begun on an experimental station in a few weeks. It is the purpose of the survey to study explosions, which will be made to order. There will be a long steel tube 100 feet in length and 6 feet in diameter, about the size of an ordinary mine entry. In this will be mixed the different combinations of gases found in a mine, and explosives will be launched into this by a mortar situated at a safe distance. Should the explosives fail to ignite any of the gases under any and all circumstances they will be recommended to mineowners as safe. It is hoped that in this way the survey can cut to a minimum danger to life.

Fire Damp Grave Problem.

The question of fire damp will be one of the most serious. The experimenters will endeavor to discover how rescuing parties may dash into the mine after an explosion and rescue those now left to die. The English plan of overcoming fire damp and "after" damp is thought to be much better than any yet advanced in America, but an effort will be made at the station completely to overcome or to counteract fire damp as soon as formed. Tests on the combination of fire damp and air and of coal dust and air will be made separately and the result carefully noted until the question is solved.

Invite Miners to Tests.

Operators and miners will be invited to be present while the tests are conducted. In order that they may see clearly the explosions of gas or dust a piece of oil paper will be placed across the face of one of the cylinders, safety valves with a piece of guncotton suspended six inches away. When an explosion occurs the flame will burn the oil paper and ignite the guncotton.

BELGIAN CHURCH FORMALLY OPENED

Archbishop Quigley Dedicates First Chicago Temple for That Nationality.

JOY REIGNS AT BANQUET.

Glories of Little Kingdom Sung and Spoken in Three Different Languages.

The glory of Belgium and the great deeds of her sons, from the time of Vercingetorix to the present, in arms, religion, art, and commerce, were sung and spoken in three languages yesterday at St. John Berchman's church, 1864 Humboldt boulevard.

The occasion was the dedication of the first Belgian church in Chicago. The services and festivities were participated in by three Belgian bishops, by Charles Henrotin, Belgian consul, and by many other Belgian churchmen and laymen.

The church was dedicated at 9:30 a. m. by Archbishop Quigley, assisted by the Rev. Fathers Francis Kelley and E. M. Dunne. Solemn pontifical high mass was celebrated at 10:30 by Bishop Theophilus Meerschaert of Oklahoma City. The deacons of the mass were the Rev. A. Noetbaert, the Rev. A. Depoorter, the Rev. A. Thiele, and the Rev. D. J. Riordan.

Fidelity of Belgians Praised.

The sermon was preached by Bishop Camillus P. Maes of Covington, Ky., who contrasted the history and condition of Belgium with that of other European countries.

"Belgium through all her sixteen centuries of history has been true to the church," he said. "Such things as have occurred recently in France never have been possible across the line in Belgium, which is the most thoroughly Catholic country in the world. It is also the most prosperous country in the world. Even after Belgians leave the fatherland they not only cling to their faith but become missionaries among their neighbors."

Archbishop Quigley emphasized the fact that the children after being taught in the Belgian school the glories of the faith and history of, their ancestors as well as the ordinary common school branches would be better sons of the church and better citizens.

Glories Told at Banquet.

Following the morning services a banquet was given. Charles Henrotin was toastmaster and responses were made by Archbishop Quigley, Dr. C. Vermeren, Charles F. Strubbe, Frank J. Handley, Father Francis Kelley, Father De Vos, pastor of the church, Father Noetbaert, and Felix Streyckmans.

Julius Cesar was quoted to prove that the Belgians were the bravest of all the valiant tribes of Gauls. Even in the presence of Archbishop Quigley, Bishop Muldoon, and Fathers Kelley and Dunne, one enthusiastic young Belgian claimed St. Patrick for his own native land.

"Americans are too apt to think of Belgians as an unimportant province in the Neherlands," said Mr. Streyckmans. "Belgium has given dynasties to France and saints and soldiers to the world from the time of St. Patrick to that of Father de Smet and Father Damien. What hero was greater than Godfrey de Bouillon, the crusader, who, when offered the crown of Jerusalem, said he would never wear a crown of gold where his Lord had worn a crown of thorns?"

Sermon Preached in Flemish.

In the afternoon Flemish hymns were sung and a sermon in Flemish was preached by Bishop Gabriels of Ogdensburg, N. Y. In the evening pontifical vespers were sung and a sermon was preached in French by Bishop Meerschaert.

The 3,000 Belgians in the city are widely scattered, so the boundaries of the parish of the church are made to coincide with the boundaries of the diocese. With the completion of this church thirteen nationalities have Roman Catholic churches in Chicago. The church was organized by the Rev. J. B. De Schryver of the Jesuit Fathers and turned over about a year ago to the Rev. Julius De Vos, a secular priest from Alliance, Neb. The building is of Spanish Romanesque architecture, of white and buff bricks, and has cost about $50,000.

THE REV THOMAS E JUDGE

CATHOLIC EDITOR IS DEAD

Heart Failure Suddenly Ends Career of Rev. Thomas E. Judge.

ACTIVE WORKER FOR CHURCH

Pastor of St. Finbarr's as Well as Publisher of the New World.

The Rev. Thomas E. Judge, 42 years old, pastor of St. Finbarr's Roman Catholic church and editor in chief of the New World, the organ of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Chicago, died yesterday at the pastoral residence, 637 South Harding avenue. The cause of death was heart failure, brought on by bronchial trouble.

Father Judge was one of the leaders among the Roman Catholic clergy of Chicago. He had been ill less than two weeks. Overwork as a pastor, coupled with his editorial labors, probably hastened his death.

Born in Ballymote, County Sligo, Ireland, he received his early education in the Christian Brothers' college, Dublin, and at the age of 15 entered Maynooth seminary, from which he graduated with highest honors. Upon his graduation he was ordained priest, and in 1886 was elected to the faculty of Maynooth seminary as professor of philosophy.

Becomes a Teacher in America.

After four years of teaching philosophy, Father Judge accepted a call to St. Paul's seminary, St. Paul, Minn., and came to the United States in 1891. He remained four years at St. Paul's seminary and came to Chicago in 1895. Then he took a post-graduate course at the University of Chicago, and with only one year's study won the degree of doctor of philosophy, the only student of the institution who was distinguished by the award of such honors.

Father Judge became pastor of St. Finbarr's parish seven years ago. Prior to that he was for a time assistant pastor of Holy Angels' church. He was appointed editor in chief of the New World by Archbishop Quigley in October, 1905. The policy of the paper previously had been to hold aloof from all matters not strictly of a religious character. Father Judge changed this policy and commented from a religious point of view on all questions affecting Roman Catholic interests.

Active in Educational Work.

He was actively interested in the spread of education. A parochial high school and business college were among the institutions he established in his parish, and in the high school he taught English literature. Three weeks ago he published a book entitled "The Encyclical of Pope Pius X. on Modernism With Notes and Annotations by Father Judge." He was much interested in the Gaelic revival in Ireland.

Last March he received the degree of doctor of divinity from Rome, with the special compliments of Pope Pius X. for his work in the examinations. The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Finbarr's church. Archbishop Quigley will officiate. The body will be placed in the church tomorrow and will lie in state until the funeral. Interment will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

Resolutions in eulogy of the late Father Judge were adopted at a meeting of the officers' association of Knights of Father Mathew, held in St. Mary's hall.

Brundage Will Address Ministers.

Corporation Counsel Brundage will address the Presbyterian ministers at their weekly meeting today. It will be held on the ninth floor of the Masonic temple.

Pair Who Stole Little Lillian Wulff Are Trying to Shift Blame.

MAN'S SPELL OVER WOMAN

Birmingham's Wife Says She Aided in Crime While Under Strange Influence.

As little Lillian Wulff yesterday sang and romped about her home, 3951 Armour avenue, under the watchful eyes of a fond mother, her abductors, William Birmingham, alias Jones, alias Clark, and Alzina, his wife, trembled and shuddered in their cells at the jail and sought the sympathy of their fellow prisoners.

"I guess they have me for life, but they are telling many lies about me," said Birmingham. "I am surprised, though, to see the way my wife has gone back on me and played in the hands of the police."

"Birmingham and Everett Merrell, alias Riley, are responsible for the kidnaping of the child, and when I am placed on the stand I will tell the entire truth," said Mrs. Birmingham. "Of course, I actually carried her away, but I was forced to do it."

Seek Author of Note.

The police now are satisfied that it was not Riley who sent the note to the Wulff house Friday asking for $100 for the restoration of the child. It was another man, but he is as much wanted as Riley himself. Deputy Sheriff W. J. Reilly of Momence, who arrested the kidnapers, thought for a time that he had the missing Riley in custody, but later decided the prisoner was a weak minded person from Kankakee, and released him.

The fact that "Clark" and Riley disappeared after a brief sojourn with Birmingham led the police to believe Birmingham might have killed them, but this seems to be the wrong impression. Birmingham and his wife both agree that Riley went back to his brother in Omaha, and both insist "Clark" is a myth.

Mrs. Birmingham says her husband confessed attempted murder to her, but says the crime was committed over six years ago and that her husband "did time" for it.

"Well, the police have dug up a body and say they are going to prove that I killed Clark, are they?" asked Birmingham at the jail. "They will get fooled on that. Clark and Jones are me, the same as Birmingham.

"Riley left us at Lowell, Ill., last Tuesday after borrowing my rifle and saying he was going hunting. He didn't come back. I can prove this by the farmer near whose house we camped that night.

"The police had me dead to rights on this kidnaping or I wouldn't have confessed. I am subject to epileptic fits and continually took strychnine tablets to ward them off. They made me dopey. That is why I aided in the kidnaping. My wife is weak minded and the police are having fun with her."

Wife Lives Under Spell.

"My husband had a strange power over me and I could not resist his bidding," said Mrs. Birmingham. "My name was Taylor before I was married and my folks are respectable. When I was about 18 years old I joined the Volunteers of America. Capt. Fielding sent me to Kansas City, Mo., to join the slum corps.

"While rescuing those poor souls off the streets I met Birmingham and was strangely fascinated. Although he told me that he had just got out of prison I married him on Dec. 28, 1901. He was motorman on a street car then, but three years ago began traveling about the country.

"There never was a man named Clark with us, but I do know that Birmingham was jealous of Riley. My body is all marked where he thrust a knife in me on different occasions. This cage life—not the gilded cage—is the first peaceful time I have had since we were married."

Demands Speedy Justice.

Life imprisonment for kidnapers was urged by the Rev. M. P. Boynton in a sermon in Lexington Avenue Baptist church. He mentioned the case of little Lillian Wulff, and said he hoped speedy justice would be measured out to the man and woman who kidnaped her.

He held, however, that kidnaping is not more represensible than the enticing of young women into "white slavery," or the enticing of boys into disreputable saloons.

SAYS THOUSANDS ARE KIDNAPED

Father of Unrecovered Child Moved to Discuss Conditions by Theft of Lillian Wulff.

Terre Haute, Ind., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Dr. L. S. Byers of Seelyville, whose 4 year old son was kidnaped in May, 1905, and who has vainly followed clews to all parts of the country, said, discussing the Lillian Wulff case:

"There are thousands of children now wanderers in this country who have been kidnaped. When these thousands of gypsies, whose assets are an old wagon, a horse or two, and children to beg a living for the whole gang, are brought to justice, child stealing will measurably cease. Humane officers should take the children away from them to put them in an orphanage.

"I hope something will be done to end the growing evil, which is the most heartrending affliction that can befall a parent. The deadly uncertainty of the child's condition is the acme of suffering."

TEETH MARKS BETRAY ROBBER.

South Chicago Laborer Arrested as Assailant of Woman, Who Bit Holdup Man.

Betrayed by the marks of a woman's teeth in his wrist, Matthew Wrizbicki, a laborer in the South Chicago steel mills, was arrested yesterday and identified by Mrs. H. Ringer as one of two men who beat and robbed her on the night of Dec. 5. The detectives' only clew was Mrs. Ringer's statement that she had bitten one of the men on the wrist.

A Christmas masque, "The Topaz Amulet," will be given by the students of the Art institute art school Thursday afternoon, and in the evening the revels will conclude with a fourteenth century banquet.

The masque itself will have for setting the castle of Baron Mauraive. The characters will include mortals, gnomes, and fairies.

Miss Edyth Emerson will have one of the rôles.

CRUSADE ON SALE OF POISONS.

St. Louis Physician Will Have Health Commissioner's Help in Prosecuting Druggists Who Ignore Law.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The appalling increase of suicides by poison, which is to be procured for the most part in drug stores only, has led Dr. Hermann W. Faber to initiate a crusade to compel druggists to obey the law regulating the sale of deadly drugs.

He is willing to spend $100 a month, he says, in the campaign, and Assistant Health Commissioner Winn has offered to furnish a lawyer to direct prosecutions.

Dr. Faber will begin by sending circulars to all the druggists of the city, quoting the ordinance bearing on the sale of poison and telling of their moral responsibility in selling fatal drugs indiscriminately. If moral suasion does not move them to reform, he says, detectives will be employed to make cases against them for illegal sales.

RICH WOMEN MERE SPENDERS

English Suffragette Pities Her Wealthy New York Sisters.

ARE STEEPED IN LUXURY.

Says Money Saps Minds and Bodies of "So-Called Aristocracy."

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson, the famous English suffragette, pityingly arraigns the rich women of New York. She is not the sort of person who speaks without thought, either. She has been in America since Oct. 25, and has studied Americans in their drawing rooms, in their counting houses, in their state houses, and in their charities.

Reminded of Turkish Harem.

"The New York woman has too much money to spend," Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson says. "With these enormous fortunes at her command she steeps herself in the degradation of luxury. She adorns her person until I often am minded of a Turkish harem. She measures all humanity by its clothes, as her husband measures all his fellow men by their wealth and their ability to acquire more wealth. She measures the value of a movement by the women who lead it, and these women by the fairness of their raiment. She has no time to think of the vital questions of the hour, no civic pride, because she is too busy adorning her person and steeping herself in the luxury which deadens the soul to know what really is going on in the great, pulsing world of the 'under dog'—the stratum of humanity beneath her own.

Without Wealth They Are Nothing.

"In England the women of aristocracy are not always women of wealth. In New York the woman without wealth—and clothes—appears to be a mere nonenity, without power and influence.

"In England you find men spending their wealth in keeping up family estates, rather than in decking the persons of their women folk. In America, and particularly New York, men give their undivided attention to making money and trust their wives to hold up the educational, intellectual, and sartorial end. The Englishman takes pride in what his wife does for his country, the New York man in the appearance she makes on his money. It is money that is sapping the minds and bodies of New York's so-called aristocracy today."

SENATORIAL OBSTRUCTIONISTS.

The democrats in the United States senate should see in the currency question an opportunity to coöperate in the enactment of much needed remedial legislation. Having no statesmanship, and apparently no patriotism, they see only an opportunity to make political capital out of the steps taken by the treasury department to relieve the banking world and restore confidence to an alarmed people.

Unmindful of the defects in the currency system which necessitated the relief measures of the treasury department, they denounce those measures as illegal. If any of them were illegal, they were only technically so. A good defense of their legality can be made, and at the worst they were only extra legal. They were unusual measures demanded by an extraordinary crisis. Similarly the governors of the Bank of England, with the consent of the ministry and the approval of public opinion, have resorted to extra legal measures three times in fifty years.

When blatherskites like Ben Tillman are allowed to wrangle over the issuance of clearing house certificates and checks and the right to issue 3 per cent government certificates, the real question of reforming the currency will be befogged. Congress ought not to fool away its time with such as he, and the vacuous Bacon, and the invincible Jeff Davis.

If the situation were not serious it would be diverting to witness the cavortings of the democrats and to listen to their magniloquent vituperation. But the situation is serious—the currency question ought to be considered carefully and dispassionately. It is not a partisan or a sectional question. It is one which interests all Americans alike.

It is sad to think that among all the southern senators in this congress there is scarcely one who can be relied upon to assist in any constructive work. They choose to be obstructionists, fancying that some petty party advantage may be gained thereby. But the people always have despised, and always will despise, the obstructionist who has not intellect enough to legislate wisely himself and devotes himself to putting obstacles in the way of better men.

SEEKING AMERICAN TRAINING.

The announcement which comes from Australia that a brother of the late Leland Stanford plans to establish eight scholarships in the California university which bears the family name has particular interest because of a qualifying provision. The Australian students who are to have the benefit of the endowment must pledge themselves that they will return to their native country and use their added knowledge in furthering its development.

The thought is a reminder of the interest which Japan has shown in American education during a score of years. The sons of its prominent families have come to Yale and Harvard and other universities to perfect themselves in many lines and then have returned to their island home to take responsible positions in the government service or to assist in building up colleges and universities of high grade. Some of the warmest friendships in the world of education exist between leaders of thought in this country and their former pupils or coworkers who are now in Japan.

An examination of the student list in the catalogue of any of the large universities, or, better yet, of the table which indicates whence the student body comes, will show how the foreign element is growing. For instance, a recent catalogue of Cornell lists students from no less than twenty-nine foreign countries in addition to a number from Hawaii and the Philippines. The systematic training of boys from our insular possessions is being undertaken, as is well known, with the definite idea of making them more effective as workers in the improvement of those lands. In some instances the representatives of alien races are here on the initiative of a missionary and their education is a sort of charity. But in more cases the students are self-supporting and are working with the avowed intention of returning home for greater service to their people.

The Rhodes scholarships have attracted much more attention than this other movement in education. Their influence can hardly be expected to be so great. Mr. Rhodes seems to have been inspired by the thought that the venerable institution at Oxford needed an infusion of new blood for its own improvement. The gain to the individual student counted for less than the liberalizing of the university. The gradual change in England was of more importance than the reflex influence upon America or Africa exerted by the returning beneficiaries of his great fund.

The implied compliment to American education which this foreign enrollment expresses is pleasing. In the case of the Stanford proposition family pride may figure. But the idea of helping Australia through brilliant men trained in America is not a new one in education. Other countries have already found it profitable.

SEND IN YOUR COMPLAINTS.

The reports of the work of the sanitary and food inspectors which THE TRIBUNE has been printing from day to day reveal two things. One is the pressing need of thorough and continuous inspection. A frightful state of affairs has been disclosed in many parts of the city. The other is the lack of an adequate inspection force. There is an enormous amount of work to be done, and "the laborers are few." No matter how active and intelligent the handful of inspectors may be they cannot be omnipresent and omniscient.

Therefore it is the duty, and it should be the pleasure, of the public to aid the overworked health department. Insanitary conditions prevail in hundreds of tenement houses and stores where food is sold which may escape the notice of the inspectors, but which some citizen must have knowledge of. His regard for the health of the community, if not for his own health, should prompt him to report every case that he notices.

THE TRIBUNE calls on its readers to send it prompt and precise information of all cases coming under their eyes where laws and ordinances relating to pure food, sanitation, and the prevention of disease are being violated. In some instances the violation is due to ignorance. In others it is deliberate, with the hope that the offense will not be detected. Publicity will often frighten these offenders into good behavior.

Those people are the best protected who do not rely exclusively on the laws passed for their benefit and the men who should enforce them but who do something to protect themselves. Citizens who wish to see enforced the pure food and sanitary laws, on whose rigid observance the health and well being of the community depends, should keep their eyes wide open and report to THE TRIBUNE whatever they find amiss. They will serve themselves and the health department as well.

GOOD ROADS.

The National Grange recently adopted resolutions favoring the immediate enactment by congress of legislation making liberal appropriations for the improvement of the public highways of the country. It has been suggested that $50,000,000 appropriated at the rate of $10,000,000 a year would be just enough.

The condition of the highways in most parts of the country leaves much to be desired, but this is not a good time to ask congress to appropriate, and that on a grand scale, for work which hitherto has been left exclusively to the states. So many different interests are appealing to congress for appropriations that some of them are bound to be disappointed.

The reaction from the exuberant prosperity of the last few years must have an effect on the revenues of the government. The receipts from customs duties and internal revenue taxes may be expected to decline. It will be in order for congress to study economy and to be so moderate in its expenditures that a deficit will be impossible.

But congress is asked to increase the government expenditures. It is asked to enter upon the improvement on a grand scale of the inland waterways, to add considerably to the cost of maintenance of the army and the navy, and to order the construction of four new battleships. A proposition that the general government shall vote money towards the building of highways is not likely to be favorably considered.

It should not be. The development of the activities of the federal government is rapid enough as it is. States, counties, and townships should construct their own highways, which are chiefly for local use. The general government finds abundant employment in the field of great national enterprises, such as irrigation schemes, the improvement of important rivers and harbors, the maintenance of a quarantine service, etc. Intolerable confusion would ensue if the federal government were to begin to divide with local taxpayers the cost of road building, and it should keep out of something which is none of its business. If there are states where the local authorities do not attend to the building of highways let the National Grange urge the legislatures of those states to impose a per capita tax or one on land to meet the cost of construction.

The national government has not voted any money for highways, and should not begin doing so, but it has, through one of its agencies, been giving good advice to the local authorities who build and maintain roads. The office of good roads, which is one of the bureaus of the department of agriculture, furnishes expert advice whenever called on. It tests road making materials and investigates methods of road construction.

A large proportion of the money spent on roads in this country is wasted through not knowing how to use it wisely. If the farming communities which need good roads will apply to the office of good roads for expert advice, which will be freely given them, they will be about as much benefited as they would be by a federal appropriation.

COMMON PROBLEMS OF CITIES.

Examination of the daily papers of other large cities and comparison of the subjects treated in their columns with those discussed by the Chicago press often show a surprising similarity of interest. Topics which seem local in their bearing and forced upon the attention because of peculiar conditions in Chicago are found to have place also in the life of other cities where almost the exact words used here are reproduced, with names alone changed. At times the coincidences are remarkable and surprising.

A good illustration is afforded by the proposed revision of the building laws. The subject was presented to the city council of Chicago in the same week in which the New York aldermen were discussing a new building code for that city. Those who have profited under old rules are objecting to the detailed and specific requirements which lessen materially the opportunities for exercise of "discretion" on the part of the inspectors, and, of course, the chances of graft. The sections relating to theaters and to fireproof construction are antagonized, the one class interfering with the returns of theaters controlled by politicians, the other giving a practical monopoly to manufacturers of a special kind of fireproofing material. With some trifling exceptions the arguments pro and con are what may be heard here when the revised code comes up for adoption.

New York is struggling with the same problems as those which confront Chicago. The board of education reports a constant scarcity of teachers, its outlying and least desirable schools having special difficulty in securing sufficient instructors. The teachers complain of the small salaries that are paid. They seek all the time to get transfers to better schools. The papers are full of traction matters. The street car companies are kept on the grill. Criticisms of the service are continuous, and one thing after another is proposed in the way of improvement.

The list of illustrations might be increased indefinitely. The problems are common because they reflect the conditions of present-day life. The city is the great central feature of the age. It has grown so rapidly that its administration has not been able to keep pace with its physical development. It has handled its problems in a haphazard way until they have become so large as to demand heroic treatment. To house the people safely, to transport them from home to business and back again, to provide places of amusement with proper precautions for protection of life, to teach their children, to guard their health—these are some of the matters to be determined in every city, and they all press for solution at once.

It is this condition of things which has led a good many thoughtful men to believe that no phase of public administration makes such demands upon intelligent citizenship as that of the city. That belief carries with it the conviction that no field of service has greater possibilities for the earnest and ambitious than are afforded in the working out of the problems of modern municipal control.

PRAISE FOR MAYOR BUSSE.

Editor of THE TRIBUNE: The mayor is to be commended for his attitude with respect to the nest of saloons at Fifty-fifth street and Lake avenue. This is the plague spot of Hyde Park. Recently he issued orders that no licenses should be issued in this territory without special investigation as to the character of applicants and the petitions presented by them.

More recently a full investigation of one of the applications disclosed a deficiency in necessary signatures and the license was refused. The saloons at this point are specially objectionable from the fact that they are a constant demoralizing influence for the employés of the various hotels in the vicinity.

If the Saloonkeepers' association is desirous of weeding out the tough saloons here is a fruitful field, and if the brewers have really seen a great light they would do well to withdraw their support from this locality.

The citizens of Hyde Park for many years have cried out against this demoralized and demoralizing spot between the university and Jackson park, and the action of the mayor is backed up by strong sentiment.

THANKFUL.

SPEAKER CANNON AND MR. BURTON.

[From the New York Sun.]

It is highly complimentary to Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio that Speaker Cannon desires, urges, and pleads with him to accept the chairmanship of the committee on rivers and harbors, and it is extremely creditable to Mr. Cannon that he refuses to consider any other name than Mr. Burton's for the place. As a candidate for the republican nomination for president Mr. Cannon's interests might be promoted by the appointment of a personal friend and supporter to the chairmanship, some one who was a better politician than Mr. Burton and could and would mix up the estimates and use his influence in behalf of projects of far reaching importance in the political sense, which is something that Theodore E. Burton would not do for any man on earth.

YOUNG LORD POWERSCOURT, who is now on his way to America with his pretty wife, a granddaughter of the late Lord Radnor, is the head of the ancient house of Wingfield, and furnishes a living proof that the strange curse which, for hundreds of years, has hung over his family has come to an end.

The malediction was to the effect that no lord of Powerscourt should live to see his successor come of age, and when, in the summer of 1901, the present viscount attained his majority during the lifetime of his father, the late peer, the celebration of the event at Powerscourt, the grand old country seat of the Wingfields in County Wicklow, was without precedent in the history of the family.

The Wingfields were settled at Wingfield in Suffolk long before the Norman conquest, when, according to the chronicles of Camden, they were already "famous for their knighthood and ancient nobility."

The first of the family to bear the title of Viscount Powerscourt was one of the generals and courtiers of Queen Elizabeth, who appointed him her knight marshal and lord high chancellor of the kingdom of Ireland.

Returning to London after defeating Cahir O'Doherty in Donegal, Queen Elizabeth, then already an old woman, asked of him what reward he would desire, whereupon Lord Powerscourt replied that he would like nothing better than the scarf which she wore around her neck.

This scarf figures in the portrait of the first Lord Powerscourt at Powerscourt castle and is preserved as one of the most treasured of the family relics.

Powerscourt is one of the most stately homes of the Irish aristocracy. For Irish the family has been since the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and its possessions, as well as its principal honors, are Irish.

Approached by a mile long avenue of fine old beeches, most of them over 200 years old, the mansion bears evidence of the various periods at which it has been built, the original structure having been an ancient castle, some of the walls of which, from eight to ten feet thick, are still to be seen in the central part of the building.

It is beautifully situated, amid splendid scenery, in what has been called the garden of Ireland, and the deer park, over 1,000 acres in extent, contains an immense herd of beautiful Japanese deer, all born on the property, as well as the famous Powerscourt waterfall, 370 feet high, and well known to tourists as the highest waterfall in the British islands.

The place has been in the possession of the Wingfields since the reign of James I., who made a grant thereof to the first Lord Powerscourt, and had previously been the scene of a number of historic sieges in the wars by which Ireland was devastated in the thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth centuries; and as late as in the reign of Henry VIII., after it had been seized, and held for a time by the O'Kavanaghs, they were forced to surrender to Sir George Stanley, who put no less than seventy-four of them to death.

The late Lord Powerscourt's brother, the Hon. Lewis Wingfield, will be remembered as a brilliant author, as war correspondent for the London Times in several campaigns, and as a wonderfully clever artist, the grand salon at Powerscourt being adorned with beautiful frescoes representing subjects taken from Moore's poems, and painted by Lewis Wingfield.

Lord Powerscourt is one of the innumerable grandchildren of that patriarch of the British peerage, the old earl of Leicester, who has no less than eighteen children, there being exactly half a century of difference between the age of his eldest child, the dowager Viscountess Powerscourt, and his youngest son, the Hon. Lovel Coke, the latter having been born in 1894, and Lady Powerscourt in 1844.

Lord Leicester, now in his eighty-fifth year, is the son and heir of that wonderfully picturesque and popular character, "Mr. Coke of Holkham," the typical whig county magnate and Norfolk squire, and who was the most vigorous and passionate champion of America throughout her war of independence, nightly toasting George Washington as "the greatest man on earth" while the struggle lasted, and fiercely denouncing George III. as "the worst man who ever sat on a throne," and his prime minister as "that vile Pitt, head of the vile tories." Indeed, his creed was to "fear God, help man, and hate tories."

Nor will it be forgotten here that it was he who, arrayed in the picturesque country garb which, as a knight of the shire, he had a right to wear at court, and in which Gainsborough painted him, presented to the discomfited king the parliamentary address which put an end to the American war. In fact, it was he who moved and carried in parliament the motion and address to the crown for Great Britain's recognition of American independence.

How independent he was is perhaps best shown by the fact that when, on one occasion, George IV., at the time prince regent, intimated to Coke that he proposed to honor him with a royal visit at Holkham, Coke, who disapproved of the prince's treatment of Mrs. Fitzherbert, curtly informed him that "Holkham was open to strangers on Tuesdays."

It is not generally known that Coke of Holkham was the inventor and originator of the hat which here in America is usually described as a "Derby," but which in England is known either as a "billycock" or as a "bowler."

Coke realized the need of a hat which would keep on his head in wind and not be damaged by rain, and accordingly conveyed his ideas upon the subject to his hatter, a man of the name of William Bowler, in the borough. The latter produced, in accordance with Coke's designs and views, the low crowned stiff felt headgear which, as I have mentioned above, is sometimes known as the "bowler" and sometimes as the "billycock," the latter being merely a corruption of "Billy Coke."

Coke, who did more than any other man of his time to promote scientific farming not only in Great Britain but also in America, was offered seven times a peerage by six different prime ministers, which he refused, disdaining, as Sheridan put it, to "hide his head within a coronet," and preferring to spend £500,000 upon his thirteen elections as knight of the shire, that is to say, as representative of his county in the house of commons.

On the eighth occasion of the peerage being pressed upon him he yielded, and accepted the earldom of Leicester and the viscounty of Coke, these being the first peerages created by Queen Victoria on her accession.

The present Lord Leicester lives up in every respect to the traditions of his famous father as the great county magnate, and is never happy away from his ancestral home at Holkham in Norfolk.

Holkham park is inclosed by a wall over nine miles long, and within its limits is the most famous bird sanctuary in the united kingdom. It is celebrated among ornithologists as the refuge of all sorts of rare wild birds, domestic and foreign. The sanctuary consists of certain portions of the property and certain lakes which are devoted to them, and where they are absolutely safe from any kind of disturbance. The bird world seems to know this and the spectacle sometimes presented on the shores of these sheets of water is altogether unique.

The entire Holkham estate covers an area of 50,000 acres, and the property has been in the possession of the Coke family since the days of Sir Edward Coke, the lord chief justice of England under Queen Elizabeth and James I.

In the library at Holkham is preserved Sir Edward's copy of Bacon's "Novum Organum," presented to him by the author, with the latter's signature, and a tribute of regard and respect of the author for his judicial colleague.

Chief Justice Coke does not seem to have been properly grateful, for he has added to the inscription in his own handwriting on the title page the following caustic comment:

"Deserveth not to be read in schooles,
"But to be freighted in the shippe of fooles."

This witticism was suggested by the design of a "shippe" on the title page.

Lord Leicester, like his father before him, declines to insure Holkham hall, or its contents, partly because he believes that no money could cover the loss of his treasures, and also on account of his firm belief in the fireproof character of his grand old home.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

Just Out of College.

When George Ade wrote "Just Out of College," and it was produced in New York without causing a startling amount of favorable comment, several good friends assured the Indianian there was but one thing wrong with the comedy: The first act was too good!

No play, they argued, could succeed when the first act was the best of the three. The strength of a play must be disclosed some time between 10 and 11 o'clock, and never exposed to the bludgeons of the cynical as early as 8:45. They were so positive of this fact, and so earnest in the statement of it, that it made an impression on Mr. Ade. He carried the thought with him until he wrote "Artie," and then he deliberately tried to profit from it. It was his confessed ambition to write a "bad" first act for "Artie," and he succeeded. The result, in fact, was far, far beyond his expectations. Yet "Artie," despite, as well as because of, its first act, failed in New York much more decisively than "Just Out of College." Which would seem to prove that even one's good friends do not know everything.

Yesterday "Just Out of College," having reached the popular priced theaters, and having incidentally been converted into a "comedy with music" by the interpolation of several songs, evidently written to fit the theme, was given in the Great Northern theater. It seemed to please the audience last night, though one man was overheard to remark, following the much discussed first act, that what it needed was "more vaudeville."

The actors at present toying with the Ade wit seem a trifle positive that they must of necessity be quite amusing because they are playing in an Ade comedy. The intrinsic value of the humor they project is, we fear, unknown to, and even unsuspected by, them. And yet much of it was appreciated by last night's audience.

The young man who played the part designed for Joseph Wheelock is Kenneth Davenport. He is a willing worker, though he has made one mistake. Mr. Ade did not intend when he nicknamed his hero "Jiggsy" that the actor should twostep through the part. George Denton is the blustering pickle manufacturer, Maude Vaughn and Ethel Lloyd the ingénues with love affairs, and Maude Dickerson the business woman. This quartet had a good idea of what it wished to do.

Auditorium Vaudeville.

Vesta Victoria, favorite of the music 'alls in London, returned to the Auditorium yesterday afternoon and was welcomed, if not with wild enthusiasm, at least by an audience that filled the theater and would have overflowed had there been any place to put it.

Miss Victoria is a fortunate girl. She has her friends, and for them she can neither sing too often nor too much. She likewise is a generous soul. She makes it a rule to give three verses of each song and two choruses to each verse. Then if the friends are still applausive, or hope next time to fit the air to their whistle that they may join in, she adds an extra chorus or two.

This plan is satisfying if you like the songs. Otherwise it is likely to get on the nerves. A compromise on one chorus for one verse, and perhaps an extra one for the whistlers, would help matters. As a singer of her peculiar style of songs Miss Victoria's virtues embrace a beautifully clear enunciation and a certain cleverness in broad burlesque. Yesterday she repeated a half dozen of the songs she sang here in October.

The bill of which she is the feature is representative and exceptionally entertaining. It includes the Four Lesters, excellent trick bicyclists and comic acrobats; Prince Kokin, a natty Japanese juggler, who is assisted by an American wife he married on a previous tour of this country; the Georgettys, one a quite small Georgetty, who accomplish wonders in an acrobatic way; Burton and Brooks, veteran vaudevillians, and several others.

Klaw & Erlanger, in their effort to fulfill some of their biggest contracts before withdrawing from the vaudeville field, are affording unusual bills at the home of the advance these days.

Robertson's Play.

Choosing between the art drama and Christmas shopping last week, the supporters of the Donald Robertson players evidently preferred to shop. This serious actor and his several serious players gave two performances of a play by Bjornsterne Bjornson, an Ibsen contemporary, and neither performance attracted a respectable corporal's guard. In fact Wednesday afternoon, when the Robertsons inaugurated their present season in Fine Arts Music hall, there were thirty-five persons on the lower floor and less than ten upstairs. Which in all probability did not enthuse Mr. Robertson.

The play was "A Gauntlet," a short tragicomedy in three acts and a quantity of pertinent dialogue. It was tried first on a Hull house public two weeks ago, and there voted a purposeful little drama which looks rather closely into the intimate family life of a certain Norwegian family. The daughter of this family is about to marry the son of one Christiansen, and the match seems in all ways desirable. The respective fathers of the two favor it, one mother is pleased, the other resigned, and the young people have given every indication of being fond of each other.

But, just as everything is moving gracefully toward the ceremony the young woman is made acquainted with certain episodes that have decorated the life of her fiancé. He has not always been early to bed, and many of his morning hours have been filled with remorse. Worse than this, the attention that he has paid a certain matron has caused general comment as well as ugly threats on the part of that lady's husband. Hearing this the girl promptly breaks her engagement. She will marry no man who demands of her a cleaner life than he himself has led. Her mother advises her not to be hasty. Her father insists young Christiansen is as good as any other man, and better than many. But the girl is firm and the play ends as she finally dismisses her ex-betrothed by striking him across the face with her gloves.

The Robertson players gave a capable performance of the play, which is short and admirably adapted to the purposes of the movement they represent. Mr. Robertson, Miss Redlich, and Mr. Vivian were particularly forceful in their expression of Bjornson's philosophical truths. This company hopes to continue giving two performances a week in Music hall, on Wednesday afternoons and Saturday evenings. This week the bill will be "The Man in the Iron Mask," a dramatization of the Dumas story made and played in by Mr. Robertson years ago.

BURNS MANTLE.

Kubelik-Hambourg Recital.

The chance to hear Jan Kubelik, the Bohemian violinist, and Mark Hambourg, the Russian pianist, for one price of admission attracted an audience of good size to Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, where these well known musicians gave a joint recital. The bringing together of the two proved not wholly fortunate, for they are about as widely separated so far as artistic individualities are concerned as could well be imagined.

Kubelik stands for all that is refined, elegant, and neat in the interpretation of violin music. Finesse, which, while developed to unusually high degree with him, has in it nothing of effeminacy or weakness, is the unfailing characteristic of his work and his art. Hambourg, on the other hand, is individualized in his music by rush, forcefulness, and an interpretative style that is best described by "splashy." To put together two such performers and ask them to play the Beethoven "Kreutzer" Sonata and the C minor Sonata of Grieg is like linking together a skylark and an ostrich and expecting them to travel in harmony. They both are swift, but their movements are different. The Beethoven Sonata was played with exquisite fineness and rare tonal beauty by Kubelik and with extravagant shading and glaring dynamic contrasts by Hambourg. It was the classic Beethoven as regards the violin part, and the essentially modern where the piano was concerned. The result was not an artistic compound that wholly satisfied.

Following the Sonata and the numerous bows which the audience applauded from the two performers, Mr. Hambourg came forward as soloist. He was heard in the E major Nocturne and the G flat Etude of Chopin, an Arabesque of Schumann and the Liszt transcription of the Wedding March from the Mendelssohn "Midsummer Night's Dream" music. There are few players now before the public who can make the piano sound so positively hateful as does Mr. Hambourg when he gets into his smashing mood. And he is in that mood more than half the time, for he virtually has nothing in the way of dynamics between a flippant, flicky pianissimo and a tone which seems to be obtained by hitting the keys with a sledge hammer. Even when playing a cantabile passage, where only the singing tone of the piano is required, he jabs out every second or third note with a jab which not only mars all symmetry and sense in phrasing but produces a distinctly ugly and forced tone. And when any chord is unlucky enough to get in his way, he punishes it in a style that suggests unlimited pugilistic capabilities.

A great talent Mark Hambourg doubtless possessed when he began his musical studies, for he has individuality and he seems to have a musical temperament and an intelligence that should have enabled him to accomplish admirable things. But his whole musical nature impresses as having been warped and twisted. He seems to feel and hear things in some way distorted and disproportioned. All of repose, balance, and logic that make for artistic worth and beauty seem to have become lost to him. The result is his work can astonish because of the frightful speed at which he plays certain things—the Chopin Etude yesterday, for example—or the terrifying racket he can win from the piano when he hits it a blow that would shatter anything less durable than a modern grand.

Song Recital by Lawrence Rea.

In Music hall Lawrence Rea gave a song recital. His program was of unusual attractiveness, but was presented with such promptness that the final group had been reached by the time the Hambourg solos at Orchestra hall had been played. I was able, therefore, to hear only five English songs, but the manner in which these were given and the enthusiastic and appreciative attitude of the audience told of good work being done by the singer. Mr. Rea has a baritone voice which is under excellent control, is of ample range, and good volume. The tonal quality is inherently not especially sympathetic, but the intelligence and the precision with which the voice is used lend the organ charm and make all that it does interesting and agreeable. The diction is particularly clear, sharp, and exact, and in phrasing, shading, and dramatic expression the singer's work calls for only the sincerest commendation.

Mrs. Lapham was at the piano, which is equivalent to saying that the accompaniments were in every respect admirable.

WORK FOR CHICAGO TO DO.

[Editor of The Tribune.]—During my seven months' trip on the Pacific coast I was surprised at the dense ignorance shown by the people concerning what might be called the recent development of Chicago along the artistic and literary interests of life. I had again and again to show audiences that we had passed out of the pioneer stage and that we were now in possession of great institutions of learning, art, and benevolence; but they would persist in regarding us as remarkable only for our stockyards and red light district.

I have thought since that perhaps the press was a little to blame for not exploiting the institutions of art, and scholarship, and philanthropy, which certainly now distinguish Chicago. When I would inform an audience that Chicago was the greatest musical, medical, and university center in America and perhaps in the world it was an eye opener, and an enumeration of our various institutions was received with surprise.

Now can you not do something to remove this stigma? e. g., even our own people hardly know anything of our museums, picture galleries, libraries, etc. I would have the obsolete and silly practice of charging admission abolished—all days free days. I would have competent exponents of the collections, the pictures, and other objects ready to give lectures, and especially men of literary ability able to tell the people what were in the books; interpreters of art and literature. A vast fountain of educational and civic knowledge is locked up; it needs some one to open it for our children and citizens, and in this way Chicago may be known as the Corinth if not the Athens of the west.

GEOMETRIC PROGRESSION ON THE KAW.

[From the Kansas City Times.]

The inspiring quality in the actual achievements of Kansas City for making better the conditions of living is that all such labors go ahead by geometric progression. One thing done means other things projected. The educational value of the Institutional church, or of the Juvenile court, or of the pure milk stations is worth much more than are the actual modest beginnings of these things. For no community or association that ever engaged in such work has yet taken a backward step. A city that once learns what it can do for its people, and how much profit of the best sort there is in the doing of it, is inevitably led onward into the full current of a broader, more democratic, more useful civilization.

THE INDETERMINATE SENTENCE.

[Editor of The Tribune.]—In the interesting and important discussion of crime before the Physicians' club it was suggested that the indeterminate sentence may well be applied to the young and teachable offender, but not to the confirmed criminal. This is a serious error; it is precisely to the confirmed criminal, too dangerous to let loose upon the community, that the genuine indeterminate sentence is applicable. It is a popular mistake to suppose that this measure means merely easy release; statistics show that in Illinois and elsewhere the new law tends to lengthen the term served by old offenders. The truth is that our present law is not logical, it is not an indeterminate sentence law in any full sense. If the legislature would remove the maximum limit for serious felonies and require the state board, under proper judicial control, to retain habitual and old offenders through life as unfit for freedom, we should come nearer to a true indeterminate sentence law. Then the board could do what is now impossible, retain really dangerous men and keep the younger offenders under long observation until they prove their ability to use liberty without peril to life and property. What the speakers meant was not the abolition of the law but its extension logically toward a more thorough application to social defense. Illinois has merely a fragment of an indeterminate sentence law.

CHINA CHECKS JAP PLAN

Protests Against Treaties Which Imperil Its Territory.

PEACE OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT.

Attitude of World's Powers Such That Strife Seems Impossible.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—China has taken action to curb the pretensions of Japan with respect to her territory. In a formal note communicated to the powers of the world she has protested against agreements the Tokio government has been making with foreign states, insisting they are infringements upon her sovereignty which she cannot permit.

No action will be taken by the United States with regard to the Chinese protest, but it is significant as showing that the Japanese have failed in their policy, adopted immediately following the war with Russia, to convince the vast yellow empire that its interests demanded affiliation with Japan.

To diplomats in Washington the attitude of China adds another check to the ambitious program of the Tokio government. Japanese officials never have concealed their purpose to establish and maintain the most friendly relations with China, the ultimate object being to gain the military as well as moral support of the 400,000,000 people inhabiting that country. In a war with a foreign power such an immense reserve would be of incalculable value to the doughty warriors of Japan.

Japan's Motives Are Suspected.

But all chance of anything of the kind has been swept away, for a time at least, by the refusal of the Chinese to look upon the arrangements the Japanese government has been making as inspired by an unselfish desire to preserve their territory from foreign occupation.

On the other hand, according to the terms of the protest, the wai wu pu, the Chinese foreign office, believes the arrangements were inspired entirely by ambition, that they attack the sovereignty of China, that they violate the spirit of the Japanese assurances, and, finally, that they are designed to give an opening wedge to Japan and European powers further to acquire Chinese territory at an opportune time.

As this is in contravention of the principle of the integrity of the empire, which the United States originated, and to which all the powers have adhered, the wai wu pu has made strong representations at Tokio, denouncing especially the Japanese-French agreement, and has communicated its action to all the great powers.

Taft's Speech a Factor?

There is no reason to believe that the Japanese will abrogate the agreements or that China will adopt any other than diplomatic measures to bring this about; but the protest can only be regarded with equanimity by the government here, according to the diplomatic view, because it insures the sympathy of the Chinese for the United States in the present condition of our relations with Japan.

It is believed here that in reaching the decision to make its protest the wai wu pu was influenced partially by the strong speech Secretary Taft made at Shanghai, China, in which he dwelt strongly upon the friendly feelings this country entertains for the Chinese, and the determination all Americans feel to uphold all the principles of the integrity of China and the open door.

Tokio's Ambition Meets Check.

With China's defection, Japan must come to realize, in the view held here, that her position does not justify a course towards the United States provocative of strained relations, if not of actual war.

In the first place, the British government, which has allied itself with Japan by treaty, looks with serious disfavor upon steps which are dangerous to the peace of the Pacific.

Ambassador Bryce will return to London in a short time and explain to the authorities in the English capital that President Roosevelt does not want war and is doing everything in his power to avoid it.

Mr. Bryce knows that the dispatch of the battleship fleet to the Pacific is a measure of precaution rather than of offense. Unquestionably what he says will be transmitted to the authorities in Tokio, and thus confirm what has been stated by Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador here.

Moreover, Great Britain is negotiating with Japan for the settlement of the same question affecting Canada and her Pacific colonies which the United States has—that of immigration. Finally the British would not consent to be drawn into a struggle with this country.

Outlook for World Peace Bright.

Russia is still burning under the humiliation of defeat in the Manchurian war. France believes her territories in southern Asia and her rights in China are protected, for the moment, by her agreement with Japan. But she would not assist the latter power. Germany could be relied upon to give moral support to the United States.

The international outlook for peace on the eve of the sailing of the battleship fleet is more satisfactory than it has been for some time.

The recall of Viscount Aoki because of his efforts to remove all friction between the two countries will now be ascribed entirely to internal politics, in all probability, and dispatches from Tokio show that an attempt is being made to place upon his shoulders the blame of having violated a promise to negotiate a treaty of immigration which he is alleged to have made to President Roosevelt. As a matter of fact, no such promise ever was given by the ambassador and consequently could not have been violated.

President Shows Respect for Aoki.

The president entertains high respect and admiration for Viscount Aoki, and intends to show he has no sympathy with his critics by inviting him and Viscountess Aoki to luncheon at the White house the latter part of this week. It is expected that on this occasion the president will charge his guest to convey a message to the Japanese people, breathing with an earnest desire to have restored, at as early a date as possible, the friendly relations which so happily existed prior to and during the war between Japan and Russia.

CHICAGO PASTORS OBSERVE THE WHITTIER CENTENNIAL.

Faith in Human Nature, Dr. Gunsaulus Declares, Was Secret of Power of the Poet of Freedom.

Services in commemoration of the centennial of the birth of the poet, John Greenleaf Whittier, were held yesterday in several Chicago churches. The Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus of Central church, in the course of his sermon preached at the Auditorium, said:

"The man that more than all others in the midst of the small and the great gained the ear of this nation and sung into this nation's life the secret of his own faith and his own vision was John Greenleaf Whittier. How did he do it? He did it as every great orator does it with his audience—he had faith in the essential integrity of human nature.

"The old theology said the powers of reason are totally depraved. All the while God was saying, 'Come, let us reason together.' Tell me, was there ever such an insult to human nature, such a slander on the soul of man as a doctrine that faith is the ability to believe the unbelievable? Ah, the daytime has come. Today we reason."

Requisition Is Necessary.

Squire Smith Bitters and Deputy Marshal Skunk Dolittle, with a posse of resolute men, were in Blue Goose this week looking for a miscreant who had stole a barrel of whisky. We do not think they ought to be allowed to take this licker back to Hardeman county without a requisition, says the Blue Goose Banner.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

HEALY CALLS MILK DEALERS TO GO BEFORE GRAND JURY.

December Inquisitors May Take Up Investigation of Alleged Trust Today, and Early Action Is Expected.

Evidence in the milk trust investigation may be presented to the grand jury today or tomorrow by State's Attorney John J. Healy. The regular docket work of the grand jury will be finished today, leaving the inquisitorial body free to take up the milk inquiry.

It is known a large number of milk dealers and others conversant with the workings of the alleged milk combine have been summoned to appear before Mr. Healy during the day, and it is more than likely they will at once be taken before the grand jury to be questioned.

Assistant State's Attorney James J. Barbour, who has had charge of the prosecution in the Sunday closing cases, will assist Mr. Healy in the work of questioning witnesses in the milk inquiry and presenting evidence to the grand jury. Mr. Barbour yesterday asserted that action in the investigation is sure to be taken some time this week.

Tested Recipes

Economy Chocolate Cake.

An economical cake when butter and eggs are high priced: One-half cake Baker's chocolate or three large tablespoonfuls cocoa, one-half cup milk, one egg yolk; mix together and boil until thick; add butter size of a walnut, one cup sugar, one and one-half cups flour, one-half cup milk, with one teaspoon soda, and one teaspoon of vanilla. This will make two medium sized layers. Put together with a boiled icing of one cup sugar and white of egg. CLARA J. DUENWEG.

* *

Bake Potatoes with Bacon.

To get best results take large potatoes, cut hole through center from one end to the other, insert a thin piece of bacon to fit hole, and then bake. MRS. E. HERMS.

Veal and Oysters.

Make a brown with a spoonful of nice fresh butter and lard. Chop a pound of nice tender young veal. Flavor with salt and pepper. Put it in a frying pan, add a little flour; let it come to a good color, add a cupful of oyster water and some well chopped parsley. Let it cook half an hour over a slow fire. Add your oysters and let them cook five minutes. Never allow your parsley to fry. This makes a delicious stuffing for chickens and ducks by adding a little stale bread crumbs. MRS. C. VINTON HENRY.

Flips.

Two cupfuls of milk, one egg, one teaspoonful each of salt, baking powder, and Graham flour to stir stiff. Have butter hot in skillet and fry in small spoonfuls. Cover while cooking and do not burn. MINNIE F. BLOSS.

Yule Dollies.

These are old Christmas sweets for children. Cream together one-half cup butter, one cup sugar, add gradually two well beaten eggs, one tablespoon rich cream, or milk, one teaspoon vanilla, and three cups flour. With which has been sifted two teaspoons baking powder. Stand for an hour in extremely cold place. Have ready a tin cutter in the shape of a doll about five inches long. Roll dough out on board one-half inch thick and cut into dolls. Brush each with milk and dredge with powdered sugar. Use currants for eyes and bake in greased pans in a moderate oven. When cold decorate the skirt of each doll with ruffles of frosting. Wrap separately in sheets of waxed paper. Pack in boxes with a sprig of holly, tying the box with red ribbon. These may be made any time before Christmas. MRS. G. A. WARNER.

The Boudoir

Bathe in Grape Juice.

Harriet Y.: What shall I use upon my skin, which is rough and dark? I would love to have a nice neck and skin. Please advise at once.

I would, if I were you, take a sponge bath in pure grape juice. Then I would take a spray with warm water, followed by a good massage with skin food. I am mailing you directions for making a skin food that will bleach the skin considerably.

Chapped Lip Cure.

T. H. B.: I need something for my lips which chap dreadfully this weather. What would you advise me to put on them? Kindly give me a formula for chapped lips and for a mouth that breaks out in fever sores.

Take a big mouthed bottle and put a teaspoon of borax powder in it. Add half an ounce of gylcerin and half an ounce of orange flower water. Use nightly upon your lips. If this is too strong you can use less glycerin. I think you will find that the trouble will soon disappear.

* *

Charcoal for Breath.

Janet W.: I am told that charcoal will sweeten my breath. Please tell me how to take it. Also give me a formula for a general breath sweetener, something I can use all the time.

Try this: After each meal take a charcoal tablet such as you can buy at the drug store. Three times a day take a sulphur and cream of tartar tablet in the form of candy. Rinse your mouth occasionally with warm water with a little essence of peppermint stirred well into the water. The trouble is probably indigestion. MARIAN MARTINEAU.

In the Sewing Room

How to Sew On Lace.

There is an exquisite and delightful stitch for sewing on lace which few people know of. It is used for applying lace to fine fabrics, such as handkerchiefs. To do this work, first lay the lace over the edge of the goods to the depth of half an inch or so. Baste it straight to a thread a little distance from the edge of the lace. The needle should then be placed into the goods a tiny distance from the lace.

The needle is inserted in the first hole and drawn up through the second, so that the goods taken up in the first stitch is taken up again in the second stitch. The thread is pulled snug, and the needle is then placed into the first hole for the third time, but is brought up through the fabric and the extreme edge of the lace. The thread should be drawn through to its full length. Take a stitch back through the edge of the lace and the material and bring it up in the hole made by the previous stitch. Tighten the thread and place the needle in the same hole as though to take a second stitch, but this time bring the needle out through the material on a line even with the first stitch taken. The directions given for the first stitches to be taken in the fabric and not in the lace are repeated. Repeat this until the lace is fastened entirely to the material.

Drawing the thread tight in this way and taking practically a stitch and a half each time produce a kind of a double hemstitched effect which is charming. Now cut away the material from under the lace to within an eighth of an inch. This raw edge will not leave the work in a weak condition, but will wear and launder nicely. Many women think it untidy and "balk" at this raw edge, insisting upon sewing it. It is this relentless sewing of a thing which really should have but little handling which takes away from the grace and originality of a garment, making it appear bulky and thick.

Easy Way to Make Straps.

When making straps to trim the seams of a coat or skirt cut them on the length of the cloth, not bias. Fold the strip of cloth evenly through the center and overhand the edges together with coarse, even stitches. Press flat with a moderately hot iron, on the wrong side. Baste over the seam and stitch near each edge.

DAILY FASHION HINT.

A two-piece circular skirt, with habit back, finished with shaped bands, trimmed in braid covered buttons.

With the Girl Workers

From Factory Girl to Teacher.

My parents were poor, and as there was a large family of us it was necessary for each child as it grew old enough to help in the support of the family. My father was a cooper in one of the cooper establishments of Omaha, Neb. He earned $20 per week. This sum was not sufficient to support a family of twelve, pay house rent, and other numerous expenses.

My mother had her hands full caring for the little ones and attending to household duties. My brother, older than I, was learning the barber trade.

I worked in a shirt factory, making men's shirts at a salary of $3 per week. It seemed hard for us to make a living in the city with the above stated employment. My father decided to move to the country, but had only a small amount of cash and not even a homestead right, for he had used that years ago.

My eldest brother became 21 that following spring. He filed on a homestead near North Platte, Neb. Father moved our family out on that. The neighbors were few and scattering, but what were there were kind and sociable.

After we had gotten settled in our new home the next thing was to find employment. Upon inquiry as to what employment a young woman might obtain in that vicinity I learned that the school district into which we had moved was trying to find a teacher. This presented the idea to me that I might fill that position, as I had a fairly good high school education. Not many days passed until I called upon the director of the district and put in an application for the school. He informed me that my chances to get the school the following September were good, but that it would be necessary for me to take a teacher's examination.

I secured the school in our district for a term of six months at $40 per month, gave good satisfaction, and have taught eight years, with an advance in salary each year. BERTHA M. HARSHFIELD.

Beef en Casserole—Get round steak an inch thick. Put in a casserole in deep covered baking dish after cutting into cubes. Slice one small onion and two large carrots over the steak. Cover with tomatoes. MRS. J. NELSON WIENER.

Christmas Table Decorations

The finishing touch to the decorations of the Christmas table, is added by an artistic setting of tiny electric lamps amid a bank of flowers in the center of the table. The beautiful, soft, radiance from the white and colored lights, reflected from cut glass and silver, gives the right festive note to the occasion. There is no trouble in arranging the lamps either as a border about the table or in a cluster among the flowers in the center. The lamps are strung on a cord which can be concealed among the flowers. The cord is attached to a socket, and the turning of a switch completes the decoration. The expense of lighting is inconsiderable. The lamps may be kept in the family for years, ready for use on special occasions to illuminate the festive board. For any further particulars call Main 1280, or address Commonwealth Edison Company, 139 Adams Street.

CLOISONNE is an ornamental ware representative of one of the highest attainments in Japanese Art. As much as a year is spent by the craftsmen in producing a single piece of this ware. Those of the Japanese who are expert in its production begin early in life to practice the art. Japanese boys sometimes spend a year in learning a single free-hand stroke in order that the designs when ultimately produced by them may be symmetrical, uniform and regular in all their proportions, although executed in very small and intricate patterns. The pattern is traced on an article of copper or silver which forms the base of Cloisonne, and then fine gold wires are soldered following those lines. The design is then executed in enamel which is put on in layers between the intricate spaces formed by the gold wire; each layer of enamel is fired separately. Some fine pieces of Cloisonne among other rare articles of Japanese ornamental artware which were obtained by one of our own representatives who recently went to Japan for this purpose, may be found in our Bric-a-brac Section on the Second Floor.

PROPOSES AN AFFINITY UNION

Dr. Von Bernauer's Suggestions for Making Marriage Happy.

GIVES POINTS ON HUSBANDS.

Says Round Faced Men Are Docile and Seldom Seek Divorces.

A union of girls contemplating matrimony, or even ambitious in that direction, was urged by Dr. Julius von Bernauer yesterday as a solution to the troubles that are looming up on Chicago's matrimonial sea and flooding the divorce courts.

In a lecture on "Love and Affinity" before the Psycho-Physiological society, Recital hall, Auditorium building, Dr. von Bernauer said this plan has been sanctioned by women of note in foreign countries, and would be a success in Chicago. He suggested that the maidens be organized under the catchy name of Affinity union No. 1, with the following purposes:

To teach members to cook, sew, and keep house.

To instruct them in the laws and meaning of marriage.

To investigate—through a bureau of secrecy—their respective fiances.

Round Faced Husbands Best.

"This union would fill a timely purpose in a large city like this," said the lecturer. "Perhaps the men would think they were being placed at a disadvantage, especially through the last named purpose, but it undoubtedly would result in a reformation among men. To be sure they should be such noble characters as to invite investigation—but I don't think all of them would do so."

The doctor treated the subject all the way from "love at first sight" to the second marriage. Incidentally he pointed out the secret of husband choosing, in a classification of masculine temperaments.

"The round faced man makes the ideal husband," he continued. "Under ordinary circumstances such men never separate or become divorced. They love with vigor and purpose, are even tempered, and forgiving."

Rules for Marital Felicity.

And to husbands, whether round faced, square jawed, bewhiskered, or long headed, he laid down some rules for keeping peace in the household. Here are some of them:

Court your wife always as you did before the marriage.

Don't hang around the kitchen and criticise her household arrangements.

Don't indulge in amusements and pleasures alone.

Take your wife to the club and theater when you go.

Don't dispute before the children or a third party.

Kiss her good-by whenever you leave the house, and you will not find her in tears upon returning.

The following pointers were directed to the feminine side of the house:

Balance inner beauty with outer loveliness.

Don't think that woman is destined to become superior to man.

Keep yourself young. A woman is as young as she looks; a man as young as he feels.

Never joke about husband's love. Make home your paradise and stay in it.

Widows Make Ideal Wives.

Among other things Dr. Von Bernauer said the ideal age of man for marriage is 25 years, and woman's ideal age of fascination ranges from 26 to 40 years.

"The happiest marriages are those in which the woman is at least 35 years old, or a widow," he said. "Unhappy marriages are the result, as a rule, of a young woman's fascination for a man's clothes, or his extravagance. A widow knows men, and is better able to choose than an inexperienced woman. A woman 35 years old has outgrown the flippancy that often deceives her when younger."

MORE THOUGHT ON MARRIAGE URGED BY PASTOR BARTLETT.

Minister Declares Many Persons Are Miserable Because They Wed Before They Become Well Acquainted.

"The tendency of society is toward superficiality in this city. The home is not based on the high plane of happiness that it should be. The work-a-day life of its young persons has for a natural consequence that their trend is towards amusements. There is too little of studiousness and thoughtfulness in their living."

These conditions were cited last night by Dr. William A. Bartlett, pastor of First Congregational church, as reasons for the abnormal view of matrimony which he believes is prevalent.

Dr. Bartlett preached to a crowded house on the subject, "Getting Married." He appealed for a graver consideration on the part of young persons of the natures and temperaments of their prospective "helpmeets."

Tells How to Choose a Wife.

"The best time to get acquainted with your future wife," he said, "isn't while she is dressed for the party, her cheeks touched up to a becoming tint, as she says good-by to mamma with that radiant, angelic smile. It would be a good plan to happen around about 7 a. m. and see if that same disposition prevails during the gloomy hour of a smoky Chicago morning. It would be a good plan to board awhile in that home.

"Many men don't look any deeper than a woman's beauty before they think to themselves, 'That woman is pretty; I'd like to marry her.' They often find a pretty woman has a pretty sharp tongue. There can be no happiness in a home with an ill tempered woman, any more than there can be with a sullen, sour, selfish man.

"Many young men and women keep company a good while before either learns what the other's views are in regard to the deeper views of life. A woman without religion is like a boat on a stormy sea, just off the ledges."

Many Girls Too Frivolous.

As a matter of conversion, Dr. Bartlett proposed talking about the Sunday closing campaign.

"And many young girls, should a subject as interesting be suggested," he said, "would retort, 'Cut it out,' and run on with her tittle tattle about the purchase of a marked down skirt waist or whether her tie ought to be green or blue."

Dr. Bartlett said he refused to marry divorced persons because "they have broken their pledges with each other and with God."

"And then this word affinity—it's a nasty word," he continued. "These old married man who suddenly strike their affinity ought to be struck with a club."

The pastor said he wouldn't advocate too simple weddings, and was opposed to extravagant ones.

"The other night a man came to my house," he said. "I went to the door, and he said, 'There's a couple out here on the corner that wants to get married.' They had arrived at the decision that same day. I imagine, and hadn't given the ink on the license time to dry. There is such an extreme as too simple."

LET LADS SMOKE; STOP LYING.

Deborah Boys' Club Directors Find the Members Dodge Rule, So Bylaw Is Abolished.

To smoke or to lie; which shall we allow our boys to do?

This is the problem which is agitating the ladies of the Deborah Boys' club at 1813 Indiana avenue.

This dilemma arose upon the discovery by the chairman of the board, Mrs. James Wolf of 36 Roslyn place, that though smoking by club members is strictly tabooed, the boys have been puffing "the weed" just outside the back door of the clubhouse.

The board of managers decided to set apart a room for those who wish to smoke, but to offset this remarkable concession the boys are to be given a course of lectures to teach them the evil of their ways.

URGE 8 HOURS FOR SHOPPING

Women Workers Appeal to the Unions to Live Up to Principles.

NO MERRY SEASON FOR GIRLS

Many Store Employes Physical Wrecks Before Christmas Dawns.

"Do your Christmas shopping now and give Chicago's thousands of salespeople a chance to enter a little into the joy and good cheer of Christmas," was the appeal made to union labor yesterday and the delegates to the Chicago federation were asked to urge it on their local unions. The request that organized labor live up to the eight hour day by doing all Christmas shopping within the regular hours of the eight hour working day was presented by the Woman's Trade Union league following the issuance by the big department stores of the usual holiday schedule, which adds several hours in the evening to the working day.

"For Chicago's thousands of salespeople the holiday season means a period of almost slave driven work instead of a period of joy and merrymaking," said Mrs. Raymond Robins. "Many are mere girls and unable physically to stand the two weeks' strain."

Go Home Through Dark Streets.

Miss Mary E. McDowell of the University of Chicago Settlement house related pathetic instances of the hardship entailed by evening shopping.

"During the rush weeks before Christmas," she said, "the salesgirls, many of whom live far out, have to work nearly till midnight. Then they have to go home on the cars, which run infrequently late at night, and sometimes walk several blocks along the dark streets.

"I know of a girl who is employed in a department store and Saturday night she worked until midnight. It was after 1 o'clock when she got off the car at West Forty-seventh and Halsted streets. There were men hanging about in front of the saloons.

"The girl was so terrified that she ran all the way home, a number of blocks. When she got inside the house she kissed her mother and then slipped to the floor in a faint. She was ill all the next day.

Works Until 4 in Morning.

"Then I know of another girl in the pygraphy department of a store who for several days has worked until midnight. On Sunday morning she staid until 4 o'clock so she would not have to work that day. The girl will be a nervous wreck before the holidays are over."

NO NEED OF BIBLE IN SCHOOLS.

The Rev. A. H. Harnley Says It Makes Little Real Difference—Motto on Coins Also Unsignificant.

"If the motto on our gold and silver coins 'In God We Trust' is the only thing that stands between us and heathenism, then we as a nation are hopelessly damned," said the Rev. A. H. Harnley, speaking before his congregation in the Austin Baptist church last night.

"Just now," he continued, "there is a great deal of rubbish in the air about the use of the bible and of Christian songs in the schools. And it is much of a kind with the agitation about the removal of the motto.

"I care little whether the bible is read or Christian songs sung in the schools or not. I am vastly more concerned about the reading of the bible in the home."

Chicago Violinist to Wed 'Real Man'

JOSEPHINE BROWN

VIOLINIST BECOMES ENGAGED THROUGH VISITS TO PRISON.

Miss Josephine Brown, Formerly of Chicago, Will Wed Convicts' Physician at Blackwell's Island.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The four grim, gray walls of the city prison on Blackwell's island have been just bursting with a secret and romantic engagement. The man is Dr. Philip B. Mats, assistant physician to the prison and the friend of every unfortunate inmate. The girl is Miss Josephine Brown, the violinist.

A little more than eleven years ago Chicago was taking great interest in a 7 year old girl who could play the violin with the skill of the born artist. The child was Josephine Brown. She won honors at a series of public concerts and a year or two later she came to New York with her mother and added to her fame as a violinist a reputation for childish beauty.

When "Abe" Hummel, the convicted lawyer who was sent disgraced and reviled to serve a year's sentence in a felon's cell on Blackwell's island, there were many friends who came forward to tell of his deeds of kindness during the years of his success, and foremost among them was Miss Brown.

Her skill on the violin, even more than her beauty, had attracted the attention of the lawyer when she first came to the city. Through friends Mr. Hummel was introduced to her and her mother, and eventually became the acknowledged patron of the little girl.

Miss Brown was one of the first to visit Hummel when he was sent to prison to cheer him with her violin. Another good friend, later, was young Dr. Mats. Through Hummel, the doctor and Miss Brown became acquainted and then engaged.

A messenger boy and postmen are now kept busy all day long bringing letters and telegrams from all over the country.

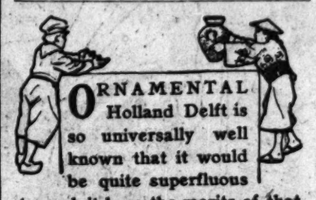

"I'm getting almost as many letters now as I did just after I won those prizes abroad," Miss Brown said. "They are quite different though. Then they were from people who said they were Count This and Duke That or Lord Something Else, and they all wanted me to marry them. I've got something now better than a duke or count, I've got a real man."

CHICAGO GIRL FALLS VICTIM TO BOGUS BACHELORS' CLUB.

Government May Prosecute Oklahoma Men Who Wanted Wives and Wrote Letters Under Fictitious Names.

Temple, Okla., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Unlawful use of the mails is the charge to be preferred by the federal authorities against the Randlett Bachelors' club of Randlett, Okla., who, by writing letters to eastern girls under fictitious names, have caused a dozen or more young women to come to the big pasture town in quest of husbands and fortunes. Not able to find the men with whom they corresponded with a view of marriage, they now are left stranded.

Several of the victims are being cared for by persons in this town. Among these is Lois Bamberger, a 17 year old Chicago girl, who arrived here last Sunday. She spent four days in quest of the man she expected to marry, but could not find him. Money has been raised to send her back to her parents.

ORNAMENTAL Holland Delft is so universally well known that it would be quite superfluous to exploit here the merits of that artware. It is interesting to know, however, that it was the desire of the Dutch about the end of the Sixteenth Century to reproduce imported pieces of ornamental china obtained through trading with Japan which led to the foundation of an industry destined to grow to immense proportions. It increased the reputation of Delft, and its commerce grew in a measure proportionate. There were many potters of the original Delft ware. The industry did not begin to decline until the close of the Eighteenth Century, and later took a second if not a more lasting lease of life. We wish to call attention to the fact that we are showing some pieces of Ornamental Delft which among others were obtained by one of our representatives recently in Holland. We believe that this ware will particularly appeal to Christmas buyers who are contemplating Pottery for gift purposes. Second Floor.

They cause the bowel muscles to act. Their effect is as natural and gentle as the same effect from food.

If we lived out-doors, and ate whole wheat, green vegetables and fruits, we would never need Cascarets.

But we don't exercise enough. We eat fine flour, much starch, and too little of fruit and green things.

We live artificially, so we need an artificial laxative.

Cascarets give us, in concentrated form, one vital effect that we lack in rich food.

Some people need them more frequently than others. It depends on your food, your drink and your exercise.

But we all need them sometimes.

The right way to take them is one Cascaret at a time. Take it just as soon as you need it. You can tell.

THE GALLANT ADMIRAL AND THE LADY FAIR.

(From the New York Sun, Feb. 28.)

Admiral Robley D. Evans, in his outburst of prophylactic patriotism, proposes that the Federal Government shall appropriate or purchase all the anthracite coal in the country for the exclusive use of the navy. Anthracite coal is smokeless, therefore it possesses invaluable advantages for use in war vessels. No other country has anthracite coal; hence its special importance to our navy. We have not very much of it in the country, only enough to last fifty years at our present rate of consumption. Last year we burned over seventy-five million tons of it, of which the navy used the one hundred and fiftieth part, or approximately 500,000 tons. When presently the navy attains the condition of puberty it will require a million tons a year.

So indispensable is this coal to the navy, that Admiral Evans urges in the most attractive and persuasive terms that it is the duty of the Government to buy the whole national deposit and hold it for the exclusive use of our war vessels. At the navy's present rate of consumption the supply would be exhausted in 12,000 years; but for the real navy to which we shall in reasonable time attain it would only last about 6,000 years. None too long, to be sure; but long enough to show that the Admiral is a prudent and a forehanded man.

Were our Government to act upon Admiral Evans' advice and buy up all the anthracite, why then in that case Admiral Evans would find himself in the unhappy position of having done a wrong, indeed a grievous injury, to one of the most beautiful, charming and estimable young women whom it is our country's privilege to honor and to cherish. Ladies' names should never be mentioned in public when it can be helped; and happily there is no need why this young lady's should appear at all, so well known is she everywhere and so delightfully and inseparably is she identified with Admiral Evans' proclivity in the matter of combustion. We lay the tribute of our humble service at her compassionate feet.

We most considerately and respectfully suggest, therefore, in view of the delicacy of the situation which we have disclosed, that Admiral Evans restrain himself from annihilating the anthracite industry in the precipitate manner he has proposed. It would be unjust, ungallant and in bad taste—that is to say, impossible, for Admiral Evans did not his patriotism for the moment obscure his more wonted emotions. Why not instead have the Government allow the anthracite business to proceed as at present for forty-five years, and when that period shall have elapsed acquire all the remaining anthracite in behalf of the navy? There will be enough of it to keep the navy going smokelessly for 647 years. Will not that term be long enough to acquit the Admiral of his duty to posterity, to say nothing of the infinitely more tender, pressing and instant obligation which he is under to Miss Snow?

Phoebe Snow Replies to Admiral Evans

Dear Admiral E—
We'd like to see
Your white navy
Kept clean and bright—
Win every fight—
By using smokeless Anthracite.

But we must write,
If 'tis your will,
Our engines fill
Keep our fires bright
And smoke from sight
With Lackawanna Anthracite.

We cannot spare
But a fair share.
Our patrons must
Ride free from dust
And travel right—
We make trip bright
By burning only Anthracite.

Phoebe Snow typifies the cleanliness of the Lackawanna Railroad—the cleanest in America. Its track is ballasted with rock. Its locomotives burn anthracite coal. There is entire freedom from soft coal dust, smoke and cinders. That is one reason why Phoebe Snow takes the Lackawanna between

END IS IN SIGHT FOR JOCKEY CLUB.

Repeated Attacks on Racing in West Presage Dissolution of Turf Body.

LAST PROP IS REMOVED.

Desertion of Crescent City Club Means Finish; A. T. A. to Be Left to Govern.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The long delayed but not unexpected preliminaries for the shelving of the old Western Jockey club developed with last week's racing at the Fair Grounds. Weakened by every attack directed at racing in the west, this once powerful body has had, during the last two years, only the Crescent City Jockey club to rely upon, and now this last prop has been taken from under and the body that has existed in name only for many troublesome months seems about to be dismembered.

Last summer there was made a premature announcement that the Western Jockey club was about to be and in some quarters that it had been formally disbanded. That such action would have been wise was the belief of several of the most prominent members. That it was not dismembered was due to the fact that other stewards were loath to give up the yearly salary that attached to their stewardships, and so it was allowed to stand. Its one hope of life was the continued loyalty of the Crescent City Jockey club. Internal strife with this latter organization finally has brought the crisis, and if by any chance the governing body should make a show of further life it will be only through the generosity of some of the wealthy members.

No Revenue from Crescent City Club.

At the opening of the season here there was much discussion as to what rules would govern the racing at the old Fair grounds track. Some of the old stockholders were anxious that American Turf association rules should govern and that no further attention be paid to the old W. J. C. After a long discussion it was decided to let things go as they had been so far as surface indications could show, but, in reality, the old plant is racing for itself strictly and from its profits the W. J. C. will derive not one cent of revenue. That much has been agreed upon, and to show the intentions of the committee that is in charge, Mr. Charles S. Bush, who for so many years was the dominating influence in local racing, and who always has been a steward representing the W. J. C. with some sort of supervision of the racing, has been denied official recognition.

At the opening of the track last Monday, Judge Clarence McDowell was commissioned to inform Mr. Bush that there would be no place for him in the judges' stand, where he had sat for so many seasons. This was a quiet way of informing him and through him the body he represented that the time for severing all official connections had come. In all the years of the life of the W. J. C. there was constantly accumulating a fund above the salaries of the officials and the expenses of conducting the affairs of the organization. It is generally understood that what was left of this fund was divided among the members some time ago, and the only chance for a revenue sufficient to pay salaries and expenses, a total of probably $10,000 per year, was that to be had from this one remaining track.

Appears to Be End of W. J. C.

This money was to come through license fees and fines. One of the arrangements between the two local racing associations was that all such fines and fees collected this winter would be divided equally between the two clubs, those from the City park plant to be turned over to the American Turf association and the Fair grounds part presumably to the Western Jockey club. There was the chance for the Crescent City Jockey club to get back at its governing body, and the members promptly took advantage of the opportunity by deciding to keep its part in its own treasury.

Without this money the W. J. C. will have nothing to carry it along and failing to derive any benefit financially or otherwise from membership, not to mention the possibility that they may be called upon to go into their pockets to share the cost of carrying on the business of the club, it is almost a certainty that the stewards will now agree to disband.

Only One Governing Body to Be Left.

A motion for formally giving up was arranged by Louis Cella last summer, Mr. Cella realizing at that time that there was no longer a chance for the W. J. C., but he was outvoted by Messrs. Bush, Montgomery, Perkins, and others, who have a fancy for the yearly salary that goes with stewardship. With the change in circumstances will come a change of heart and of vote, and it would not be surprising if the next meeting of the organization resulted in dissolution. So, after about seven years of existence, the bubble of pretense will burst, and there will remain for western racing government only the American Turf association.

But in the A. T. A. all is not so serene as it might be, if the talks of some of its members may be taken as an indication. After all there may come still another turf body that will be a combination of both the old ones, with the best points of both taken in, to make up one that will be fit to control, as neither of the old ones has been. This may not come directly, but it must come if the western turf is to be preserved, and none will doubt that those who have been most bitter in the fight of the last three years will listen to reason rather than destroy the good thing that is theirs and eventually agree to a peace that will be lasting.

EMPIRE TRACK A BITTER PILL.

Jockey Club Dislikes Prescription for Metropolitan Circuit Made by Court Physician.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The case of the Empire City racetrack and its probable treatment at the hands of the Jockey club stewards in the way of dates for next season continues to be a topic of conversation among the local turfmen.

There is still much opposition in the Jockey club to the entry of James Butler's track into the metropolitan circuit, the chief objection now, it is said, being the partnership relations between Mr. Butler and the western syndicate, of which Joseph A. Rhinock, Rome Respess, and Matt J. Winn are the principal factors.

The Jockey club, it is stated, has looked into this partnership with more than usual scrutiny. It is stated also that the Jockey club is prepared to give substantial proof that Butler did not put up a dollar to finance the meeting held at Yonkers last summer, but had Rhinock and Respess put up all the necessary ready money instead.

According to a Jockey club partisan Butler received a proposition some time ago from Rhinock and Respess to the effect that if he succeeded the getting a license by means of legal proceedings they would assume all financial responsibility. It further is set forth that Rhinock and Respess were backed by L. A. Cella, morally, if not in a monetary way, and proceeded to put up the cash for various improvements at Empire City, and also guaranteed stakes and added money, amounting to about $117,000, for eighteen days. In return for this liberality, it is said, Rhinock and Respess received 35 per cent of the net receipts and Matt Winn got a five years' contract to manage the track at $8,500 a year.

That Rhinock and Respess, with Cella in the background, made no error is shown by the fact that, according to official figures, the state of New York will receive close to $12,000 as the Empire City's state tax, which is 5 per cent gross of the receipts. The average daily receipts at Yonkers were more than $13,000. Under unfavorable circumstances, therefore, the track turned out to be a good thing, so that, with the regular Jockey club indorsement, it is natural for Messrs. Butler, Rhinock, and Respess to expect vast improvements in the track's business next year.

Mr. Butler's friends say that under no circumstances would he consent to cut away from the western syndicate, and, as the Jockey club is aware of this fact, there is quite a bit of unpleasant feeling.

The friends of Butler insist that the Jockey club's unfavorable attitude toward his track forced him to enter into an agreement with the western clique, and, in view of the assistance rendered, he does not feel like turning his western allies down.

Butler is still at New Oleans but is expected to arrive here in a few days with Manager Winn, who expects to hold a confab with one of the big men of the Jockey club regarding the date question.

Results in the tenth round of the Greater Chicago individual bowling tournament last night caused a general rearrangement of the standing, the only one of the leaders to win being Dave Woodbury, who defeated George Rost after the hardest kind of a struggle, being forced to strike out in the last game to beat the north sider.

Frank Brill was toppled over by Joe Leabel, the C. A. A. crack, in a ten game round. Brill drew all kinds of railroads in the early part of the contest. Another surprise was Will Flenner's defeat at the hands of Eddie Wass, who was in rare form. Scores:

Officials of the Chicago Bowling association wrestled the schedule of the two men and individual events of the city tournament into shape after a long day's work yesterday and the result is a list rivaling the city directory in length. The first squads in the minor events start next Sunday afternoon and the last men in the singles close up the tourney on Monday, Jan. 13, when Dick Witte, Leo Bisdorf, and Johnny Seidenbecker will give the players who are installed in first place their last tremble.

A prize list aggregating $1,825 will be hung up for the players in all events, $125 being first prize in the fives, $90 in the doubles, and $70 in the singles. There will be twenty-five prizes in each of the three events. Three prizes of $20, $15, and $5 will be distributed for the leading nine game averages.

The promoters promise to have the schedules in the mails by Thursday.

In nearly all of the leading Chicago bowling leagues changes occurred in the standing of the leading teams last week. In the Monroe league the Howards have a lead of three games over the Lipmans, with the La Matildas third. Dave Woodbury has a lead of two points over Jimmy Blouin in the individual race, with Will Flenner third. The Tosettis have a three game advantage in the Chicago league over the ex-national champion Centurys, with the Mountains next. Pete Howley has the highest average, followed by W. V. Thompson and Earl Leffingwell.

The Bryn Mawrs retain their lead of three games in the North End league over the Colonnas. Wilson, a new man, who formerly lived in Elgin, has the best individual average in the city, with 206 10-12 for twelve games.

The state champion Treulichs are ahead in the big Belmont league, with the Mohawks, Wittes, and Schott's Colts pushing them closely.

EMPEROR OF NORFOLK DEAD

Great Horse Which Won 1888 American Derby Dies.

OWNED BY 'LUCKY' BALDWIN

Animal Was 22 Years Old and Sired Many Noted Racers.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Emperor of Norfolk, one of the greatest racehorses and sires in the history of the American track, and winner of the American Derby in 1888, died Sunday morning at 8:15 o'clock of old age in the stable of his owner, Lucky Baldwin, at Arcadia.

The Emperor was born on Theodore Winter's ranch in Sacramento county, Cal. He had what was probably the most brilliant racing career ever known by a California horse, and the climax came when he captured the American Derby. Many of his get have made good records. Probably the most successful was Crusados.

When the word was sent out that the Emperor was dying, the racing men who are attending the Santa Anita park season gathered by the score, and the stable presented the appearance of a dying monarch surrounded by his court.

Old "Lucky" Baldwin was overcome with grief, and sobbed like a child. "He was the grandest horse of his time," sobbed Baldwin, "and I shall erect a monument over his grave right here on my ranch."

Besides winning the Derby the Emperor captured the Sheridan and Drexel stakes at the same meeting, and the previous year was first in the Hyde Park stakes, the chief 2 year old event of the famous Washington Park club meeting. He also won the Brooklyn Derby at Gravesend.

TOO MUCH SNOW FOR SOCCER.

Sunday Games Scheduled by Local Association Football Teams Are Not Played.

The match between the Hyde Park Blues of the Association Football league of Chicago and the Davitts of the old league scheduled for yesterday at the Blues' ground was not played on account of the snow, although the going was no worse than after a heavy rainstorm.

The Blues, who are to play the first of their two matches at St. Louis on Sunday against the St. Louis soccer league, practiced. The team will leave on Saturday night, playing their first match on the following day and the second on Christmas afternoon.

The Coal City team also will play at St. Louis on Sunday, meeting a team from the Sunday league of association football at Kulage park. It will be the first time two teams from the Chicago league have played simultaneously at St. Louis, and as the Chicago club is to go down for two games at New Year's the Mound City fans will have plenty of holiday football.

BOXING SHOW AT WORTH, ILL.

Johnny King and "Chicken" Duffy Go Six Rounds to Draw—Knockouts in Two Bouts.

Johnny King and "Chicken" Duffy fought six rounds to a draw in the windup of a boxing show at Worth, Ill., yesterday. Duffy, it was declared, refused to fight unless the contest would be called a draw if both men were on their feet at the end of the six rounds. King had all the better of the milling, outpointing his opponent at all stages. They fought at catchweights.

Three bouts were on the program and the other two resulted in knockouts. In the first "Young" Smith put Harry Foley down and out in the second round, while in the second fight Johnny Connors knocked out Charlie Peppers after only twenty-five seconds of the first round had been fought.

Jimmy Brennan refereed the contests. It was announced that Buddy Ryan and Paddy Dopohue have been matched for the next show.

BOXING AND WRESTLING GOSSIP.

"I see they keep on billing fights for the middleweight title," says Tommy Ryan. "Out west, in Milwaukee, and elsewhere, they keep announcing fights where the competitors range all the way from 140 to 180 pounds as for the middleweight championship. But when they mean to have a real middleweight championship struggle they will have to come and see your Uncle Tommy."

Ryan says he will be ready to meet the winner of the Papke-Kelly fight within three months after the signing of the articles.

Benny Yanger and Jack O'Keefe have almost lost faith in the Boston promoters who have billed the local pair for matches in the east a week from tonight. Transportation which the easterners promised to send the Chicago men a week ago has not yet arrived and it looks as if the boxers might have to abandon the trip.

Promoters Message and Curley, encouraged by their success at the Casino, have arranged to hold some wrestling events on the west side at the Waverly skating rink. The latter will be changed to afford seating capacity for 4,000, and it is planned to bring off the first show Dec. 30 in connection with announcement of the returns from the Kelly-Papke fight at Milwaukee.

Charles Olsen yesterday authorized his manager, Silvy Ferretti, to bet $1,000 that Olsen could throw any one of the following men: Beell, Rooney, Demetral, Pardello, or Lundin.

Law Captain at Ames.

Ames, Ia., Dec. 15.—The Iowa State college football team last night elected as captain Fred Law, the big left end.

MURPHY PREDICTS CLOSE 1908 RACE.

Cubs' Leader Says New York-Boston Trades Should Improve Teams.

M'GRAW AS A PLAYER.

"Muggsy" Still Young Enough for Game; World's Series Is Discussed.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

President Murphy returned yesterday from the National league meeting in New York convinced that the changes made in the New York and Boston clubs would result in a closer race in the old organization next season.

"Both clubs will be strengthened by the deal," declares the president of the champions. "The New Yorks, with McGraw back in the game, will be a mighty strong club, and any one who thinks the Cubs are going to have a walkover is mistaken.

"McGraw is not an old man. He is younger than many of the successful players of today and he will fit in mighty well with the team. With Tenney, McGraw, Bridwell, and Devlin for an infield, and Donlin, Seymour, and Shannon for an outfield, the Giants are going to be mighty strong.

"Then there are some more deals hanging fire in which the New York club is concerned, by which McGraw is likely further to strengthen his team. For that matter there are several deals involving an exchange of players that are hanging fire in the National league and are likely to be completed before spring. You will see a good race next season, I am sure. Billy Murray is going to have a good club in his Philadelphia aggregation."

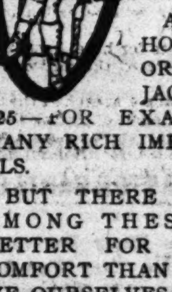

Asked concerning the action of the American league in voting against an increase in the number of world championship series, Mr. Murphy said: "Well, there is one thing sure. The players of both organizations will regret it if the number of games is not increased, as it will deprive them from sharing in the receipts of five instead of four games. Billy Keeler remarked in New York, after the National league had voted to increase the number of world series contests: 'No club is ever going to win five straight games in a world series.'

"I understand Comiskey is responsible for the action of the American league. Well, Commy is a pretty shrewd man in baseball."

The local National league magnate said the Cubs might figure in some of the uncompleted deals to be made in the old league before spring time, but that the local players so involved would be youngsters.

Joe Cantillon and Herman Schaefer left yesterday for Cairo, Ill., to join the Comiskey hunting expedition, which will sail south on the houseboat White Sox. President Comiskey himself will leave either tomorrow or Wednesday.

FRANKLIN

Cut out that water-cooling weight in your automobile.

Every bit of water-cooling weight takes power to move it. Takes gasoline—that's money. Wears out tires—a lot more money. And the mass of complicated parts keeps your car in the repair shop—still more money, and delay besides.

The light-weight Franklin gives you full use of your power and keeps your expenses down.

It avoids all the excess weight of a water-cooled car.

Anyhow, water-cooling won't let the jacket get hot enough (350 degrees) for the engine to do its best work—because water boils at 212 degrees.

Do you understand this feature? It is worth looking into. Come in and let us tell you about it. Let us take you out in a Franklin.

TRANSLATE ACTION AS HEALY BOOST.

Some Politicians So Construe Twenty-fifth Ward Republicans' Resolutions.

PROMPT DENIAL IS MADE.

Indorsement of Deneen and Condemnation of His Measure Prove a Puzzle.

Politicians spent their leisure time yesterday reading over and speculating on the resolutions passed by the Twenty-fifth Ward Republican club Saturday night. They could not exactly make out what they meant.

One explanation offered was that State's Attorney John J. Healy, who lives in the ward, might turn up as a candidate for governor. But this was promptly denied by Mr. Healy himself, and besides this is not Mr. Healy's manner of doing things. He is more direct and has a habit of going straight to the point.

The thing about the resolutions the politicians could not understand was that while they enthusiastically indorsed Gov. Deneen for renomination, they condemned the measure on which the governor is making his fight for renomination. They said the governor should succeed himself, and yet proposed a primary bill which, if made into a law, a considerable number of the governor's friends think would seriously handicap his chances for reelection.

James Pease, the father of the resolutions, had a simple explanation. It was that Gov. Deneen would be renominated and reelected no matter what kind of a primary bill was passed, or whether any was or not. He considered the political future of the governor and the fate of the Oglesby bill two entirely distinct matters.

Would Handicap Deneen.

It happens, however, that other leaders in the party, including a majority of the members of the county committee, believe that unless the direct primary bill can be passed it substantially its present form the governor will find a number of obstructions in his path. They do not say he cannot overcome them, but believe the way will be more difficult.

That he can, on a popular vote at direct primaries, get a plurality, all of them who are not personally prejudiced agree. But that he or any other candidate can get the 35 per cent plurality demanded by the Twenty-fifth ward resolutions many people doubt. It is pretty well known the governor himself does not have much confidence in that proposition. But if the kind of a primary asked for by the Twenty-fifth Ward club is ordered, then, unless some candidate gets the 35 per cent of the total vote, an old fashioned convention must decide who the nominee will be.

"No; I have no idea of being a candidate for governor," said Mr. Healy during the evening, in speaking of the resolutions of the club. "I am for the renomination of Gov. Deneen, as are the majority of the republicans and I think quite a number of democrats in the Twenty-fifth ward. He is our candidate, as stated in the resolutions."

Will Prepare the Way.

Harry S. New, chairman of the republican national committee, arrived from Indianapolis during the evening for the purpose of making preliminary arrangements with reference to the republican national convention. Mr. New registered at the Auditorium Annex.

He said it had been decided definitely to hold the convention in the Coliseum, and today he will inspect the building.

"The meeting of the subcommittee on arrangements probably will be called in Chicago early in January," he said. "I am now making arrangements for hotel accommodations for the members of the national committee."

Miles J. Devine made a speech at the meeting of the County Democracy during the day, calling attention to the known regard which William J. Bryan has for Robert Emmet Burke and highly eulogizing him.

SHOT AS HE PRIES DOOR AJAR

William Wather, Concert Hall Singer, Killed at Pool Hall.

ROBBERS SPOIL TRIP ABROAD

Workman Robbed of Savings on Way to Meet Family at Christmas.

When attempting to enter the pool and billiard hall of John Groth, 272 West Harrison street, yesterday morning, William Wather, 20 years old, a concert hall singer, was fatally shot in the groin by Charles Knute, 40 years old, a clerk employed by Groth. Wather died several hours later at the county hospital. His home was at 106 West Madison street.

According to the police, Wather and three companions attempted to force an entrance through the front door by prying it with a "jimmy," when they were seen by Knute, who was sleeping in a rear room.

Crawling along the floor behind the pool tables, Knute crept within a short distance of the door. Wather was the first to enter. Knute fired and Wather fell.

Knute pursued the other three men for several blocks.

At the hospital Wather denied he was trying to rob the billiard hall.

Christmas Hoard Is Stolen.

Joseph Doular of La Salle, Ill., was robbed of $340, the savings of years, shortly after his arrival in the city in the evening. He was on his way to his former home in Austria and had planned to spend the Christmas holidays with his wife and family there. Penniless he staggered into the Harrison street station and reported his loss. Instead of the yuletide greetings that awaited him across the sea Doular will have to return to his work in a glass factory.

According to his story he was accosted by three men of Austrian birth as he stepped off the train. As they passed an alley he was dragged in. Despite his struggles his money was taken from an inner pocket and he was thrown to the ground and severely beaten. A railroad ticket to New York was not taken.

"It was one of the most pathetic cases reported to me in some time," said Inspector Wheeler. "Doular is unable to speak English and had expected to bring his wife and children to this country, having kept them in fairly comfortable circumstances by stinting himself."

Robbed at Bar That Isn't Open.

John Bohiken, who keeps a saloon at 95 North Jefferson street, and John Ruff, a night watchman, were held up in the former's saloon at 7 o'clock at night by three masked men and robbed of a watch and $150 in cash. Bohiken says he does not keep open on Sunday or in the evening. He says he had just walked to the place to see if everything was all right.

As he opened the door Ruff came along and the two entered the saloon together. A minute later three men with handkerchiefs tied over their faces entered, and, at the point of revolvers, robbed them and escaped.

John Rasch, 385 State street, was robbed of $15 by three men who attacked him in a saloon in State street in the evening.

Big Plumed Hat Stolen.

The police were notified during the day that a Gainsborough hat valued at $75 had been stolen by two men from the millinery shop of Mme. Aimee, 1015 Garfield boulevard, Saturday evening. They seized the hat as a saleswoman was looking for some hat wire for which they had asked. The hat was trimmed with a black ostrich plume forty-one inches long.

Detective Sergeant Wertheimer returned to Chicago yesterday with William Kline, who was arrested in Rock Island. Miss Anna Shaw, 23 years old, charged Kline with the theft of her trunk after engaging her for work in a hotel.

Italian Slain; Three Arrested.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 15.—Francisco Alerigo, an Italian, was shot and killed last night at his home here. Later Alerigo's wife and two Italians were arrested. The three said Alerigo was shot in self-defense by a boarder with whom he quarreled over money matters.

MYSTERY IN GREEK'S DEATH UNDER CAR BAFFLES JURY.

Killing of Peter Marcos on North Clark Street Puzzles Investigators and Consul Becomes Interested.

A puzzling death mystery—the killing of Peter Marcos by a North Clark street trolley car last Thursday night—is being investigated by Nicholas Salopoulos, Greek consul in Chicago.

Whether Marcos was killed accidentally or committed suicide is the crux of the mystery. A coroner's jury which investigated the death returned an "open verdict."

Questions of the liability of the street car company as well as of a Greek fraternal society, in which Marcos was insured, are involved.

Mrs. W. C. Keough, formerly a member of the school board, made an investigation when she learned a night school pupil had been killed.

"The inquest seemed to have been conducted in the interest of the Chicago Union Traction company," said Mrs. Keough last night. "When the motorman was asked how fast the car was going he answered about twenty miles an hour. 'Why, you know it is impossible for you to have been going as fast as that,' said the attorney for the street car company."

Harland F. Gregory, 84 Sedgwick street, the only eyewitness, said: "It was my impression the man committed spicide."

250 Legend of Sleepy Hollow Illustrated by Keller, $1.00 Copy

Mr. Keller has enriched it with the full measure of that art, at once graceful and highly dramatic, which has placed him in the foremost rank of American illustrators. He has caught the spirit of the master-humorist to a wonderful degree. From the grotesque figure of Ichabod Crane to the charm, piquancy and beauty of that darling maid, Katrina Van Tassel, his brush ranges with equal skill.

The book is ornately bound in cloth, with a specially designed cover done in colors. The size is an octavo, 6½ by 8¾ inches. It comes in a very pretty box.

Hughes Disappointed at Failure of Public Service Men in New York City.

LINERS HELD BY STORM.

Come Into the Harbor Late with Stories of Heavy and Dangerous Seas.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, Dec. 15.

Gov. Hughes has invited the members of the public service commission from up state and down to be his guests at a dinner at the executive mansion Wednesday evening. So far as could be learned tonight William M. Ivins, special counsel for the New York City commission, has not been invited to be present. Only the members of two commissions, two secretaries, and Abel Blackmar, general counsel for the New York City commission, are to be the governor's guests.

Public Service Commissioners to Dine with Hughes

If the reported conversation between Gov. Hughes and William L. Ward, republican national committeeman for this state, is correct Gov. Hughes is not satisfied with the work of the New York City commission. According to this conversation Gov. Hughes said to Ward in New York City several evenings ago:

"Even if I were a candidate for the presidency my New York City commission, if it should continue on its course for another two months, would make me unavailable."

Gov. Hughes from the hour in December, 1906, when he spoke in the Hamilton club of Brooklyn and said it would be one of the principal missions of his administration to see to it that the transit facilities for New York City were greatly improved, never has relinquished the thought that he would be successful.

The New York City commission, however, has been in operation nearly six months, and its work has not been followed by a single practical betterment for the people of the five boroughs which make up the City of New York.

Battered by ingulfing seas that delayed their trip across the Atlantic, seven transatlantic steamships, due here on Saturday, crept into port today with their sides and superstructures showing evidence of the continual storms they met. The belated Anchor line steamer Astoria reached here after a stormy passage, during which its machinery broke down and compelled it to lay to for twenty-four hours.

Many Atlantic Liners Delayed by Storm.

La Lorraine of the French line, which led the delayed transatlantic fleet up the harbor, had a rough trip and its passengers were permitted on deck only occasionally. The Lorraine bucked into heavy head seas, which kept its decks awash. One day the Frenchman made only 194 miles.

The steamship Breslau from Bremen ran into the storm last night as it neared port and Capt. Prager decided to remain outside at anchor. The Breslau was caught in a hurricane on Dec. 6, during which the steamship labored heavily. Great walls of water bore down upon the plunging steamer and Capt. Prager reports that the spray from the wavecrest ofttimes concealed the fore crosstrees.

The steamers Minnetonka, Lucania, St. Paul, Arabic, and Pennsylvania all came in today with stories of gales and seas.

Col. John Jacob Astor is laid up with an attack of grip at his home, 840 Fifth avenue.

John Henry Parrott, who says he is an English engineer and has taken a special course at Cambridge, arrived today aboard the Cunarder Lucania with a comely young woman, Miss Grace Lawrence, 90 Brompton road, London, with whom he has been in love, he says, since last June, when he took her out in an automobile after a chance meeting at Margate. The pair occupied the same stateroom and came under assumed names as man and wife.

Elopes with Ward in Chancery and Is Arrested.

At quarantine United States Deputy Marshal Roberts boarded the Lucania and told Parrott he was wanted in London for embezzlement. The young woman, who had been talking to her lover when the deputy marshal called him aside, was much distressed when she learned he probably would be locked up.

Charles Keck, a former pupil of Augustus Saint Gaudens, the sculptor, has come to the defense of his late master's much criticised design for the new $20 gold pieces. That Saint Gaudens, when he accepted the contract to make the design, was anything but well and that later he was obliged to give over active work to others, reserving the right to pass judgment on the result, Keck admits. But he also says it is absurd to suggest that what was accomplished could have been surpassed by any other sculptor in the country.

St. Gaudens Pupil Says Coin Critics Are Unjust.

"What disgusts me," he said, "with all this adverse criticism is that many of those who are Saint Gaudens' most bitter critics merely are showing their spleen over the fact that they did not receive the award. The attacks are unjust."

Abraham Hummel, the lawyer who is serving a sentence in Blackwell's Island penitentiary for conspiracy in connection with the Dodge-Morse divorce case, is near death from kidney affection, according to prison physicians. Dr. Matz said today that Hummel's condition was such that he was likely to die at any moment. Hummel's sentence on Blackwell's Island would expire within a few weeks.

Three More Insurance Companies Fold Up Their Books and Depart, Declaring New Laws Not Workable.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Two more life insurance companies definitely announced their withdrawal from Wisconsin today. They were the Union Central of Cincinnati and the Massachusetts Mutual. Both announcements were expected, though it was known that officials of each company were trying hard to find a way to remain. They have come to the conclusion that the new insurance laws are entirely unworkable and rather than take the chance which they would have to do if they remained they prefer to give up the field.

SANTA CLAUS' RECEIPTS BIG

Chicago Shows Generosity and the Saint Laughs Merrily.

COLLECTORS ARE BUSY MEN.

Street Contributions More than Equal Record of Last Year.

The "financial stringency" hasn't caused any decline in Santa Claus' stock.

Maj. Welch, "head Santa Claus" of the Volunteers of America, is authority for the statement, and he ought to know. He has charge of twenty-five Santas, who, in the full regimentals of Mr. Claus, are stationed with their snow white geese in the downtown district all the way from the board of trade to South Water street.

The report came from New York yesterday that the nine Volunteers of America Santa Clauses were withdrawn from Wall street with their "chimney banks" because the street collections were so meager. The largest day's gleanings from "Wall street's flood of gold" by any one collector was $1.75. He was stationed at the entrance of the offices of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.

Equal Last Year's Record.

"The collections are equal to those of last year at this time," said Maj. Welch. "We have twenty-five Santa Claus collectors on the street, and now they average about $4 a day, each."

"The money comes in mostly in pennies, nickels, and dimes. The largest collections are taken in front of the department stores, and the women and children are accountable for that. The best corner is near Marshall Field's. The Santa Clauses there gather from $6 to $7 a day.

"The La Salle street brokers open their hearts shortly before Christmas. The box in front of the Board of Trade building usually yields more than any other one in La Salle street.

"I have worked in New York, and believe that the Chicago people generally are much more generous than the New Yorkers. I am not surprised that the collections are small in Wall street."

Collections Growing Bigger.

Maj. Arthur T. Brewer of the Salvation army, who has charge of the Christmas collections downtown, also says the collections this year are as large as those of last year.

"We have out from thirty to forty collectors a day," he said. "We average about $150 a day, which is equal to the collections this time a year ago. As the time approaches Christmas the collections grow bigger."

He also said that State street was a much more lucrative field than La Salle street, or the other "financial center."

JOLT FOR ANTI-GIFT SOCIETY.

Young Woman of Waterbury Breaks Engagement Because Fiance Said "Nothing Doing" Christmas.

Waterbury, Conn., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The breaking of her engagement by a young woman of this city yesterday probably will have the effect of dissolving the anti-Christmas gift society, formed here a week ago.

The society was started by a wealthy matron. Her society so appealed to the popular taste that within a few days it had 300 members. All the members pledged themselves neither to give nor receive Christmas presents.

Yesterday when a certain young man informed his sweetheart that she need not expect a present at Christmas she told him if he was that kind of a young man he might consider himself her beau no longer. Her action has had the effect of reducing the membership of the anti-gift society to a small coterie of antique spinsters and grouchy old bachelors.

BOY AN ELECTRICAL GENIUS; SENDS POWER BY WIRELESS.

Worcester, Mass., High School Pupil Goes Marconi One Better in Transmission Problem—Promises Greater Feat

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Harry M. Grout, a 19 year old Spencer boy, has gone Marconi one better and succeeded in operating electric lights and motors by electro-magnetic waves at distances of 900 feet and more.

According to authorities at the Worcester Polytechnic institute this is something that has never been accomplished before. Power has been sent through the air for a few feet, but nothing to approach the distances at which young Grout has successfully operated his lights and motors by wireless.

Grout says he believes that in a short time he will be able to transmit power regularly and in a practical and reliable manner by wireless. He has been studying wireless telegraphy for five years, electricity being his hobby. He is a student at the David H. Prouty High school. Grout is now planning the establishment of two wireless stations, three miles apart, for the transmission of power.

DIPLOMATIC STIR IN JAPAN.

Minister to Germany May Be Recalled, but Baron Takahira Is Sure to Come to Washington.

TOKIO, Dec. 15.—The crown prince of Corea and Marquis Ito arrived this afternoon and were greeted by thousands of people.

The arrival of Marquis Ito means the beginning of activity in administrative circles. It has not been decided whether the Canadian minister of labor, Lemieux, will be given a written note concerning immigration. There is no reason to believe, however, that the government will change its original decision not to give a written note.

Pressure is being brought to induce Count Inouye to return as Japan's representative at Berlin. If he consents the program for diplomatic changes in Europe will be altered. Baron Takahira is certain, however, of obtaining the Washington post.

The Japanese government is considering the increase of its forces in Corea in view of the activities of Corean revolutionists and brigands. Twenty Coreans, members of a pro-Japanese organization, were murdered yesterday.

CEMENT SHOW WILL BE UNIQUE.

Special Attractions Offered at Trade Exposition in the Coliseum This Week.

Carpenters, electricians, upholsterers, and painters took possession of the Coliseum last night to begin preparations for the opening of Chicago's unique trade exposition—the cement show—which will occupy the building this week, opening tomorrow evening and concluding Saturday. Manager L. L. Fest announces a list of 120 exhibiters, including all of the leading firms identified with the industry in America. Special attractions will include a miniature dwelling constructed of cement, which is designed after the plans for the home to be erected by Thomas A. Edison in New York next year, the first cask of cement manufactured in the United States in 1872 at Copley, Pa., and designs for cement building submitted in competition by students of Chicago manual training schools.

Over $500,000 worth of lumber piled in the yards was saved.

WHEAT OF WORLD WILL FALL SHORT

This Year's Total Crop to Be Less than That of 1906 by 400,000,000 Bushels.

PRICES TO STAY HIGHER?

Increased Rate of Production Fails to Keep Pace with Population Growth.

[BY WIRELESS TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The wheat crop of 1907 will fall short of that of 1906 by 400,000,000 bushels, according to the calculations of grain traders. On all sides high prices and recourse to reserve stocks are considered inevitable. According to one authority, the year's harvest will amount to 2,896,000,000 bushels, as against 3,288,000,000 in 1906, and an average of 3,186,000,000 bushels for the last four years.

For the season from Aug. 1, 1907, to July 31, 1908, it is calculated that the wheat importing countries of Europe will require 504,000,000 bushels, whereas it seems probable that the wheat exporting countries of the world will have a surplus of only 492,800,000, making a deficiency of 11,200,000 bushels.

Serious Matter in England.

In the united kingdom, where twenty-seven loaves are made of foreign wheat for every six made of native wheat, the shortage of the crop is a serious matter. The average price for English wheat has been steadily rising for the last year. For September, 1906, it was $7.58; a year later it stood at $7.96, and now for the third week in succession the price now stands at $8.30 a quarter.

Despite this rise, there is found to be no surplus stock anywhere, and the opinion is expressed that quotations would be still higher were it not for the money stringency in America entailing heavier shipments than under normal conditions.

Inquiries made in Mark Lane revealed an opinion that even an average wheat crop would not have prevented a rise in prices, because the population has been gaining on production for several years.

In any case it seems undeniable that the rate of increase in acreage is less than it was ten years ago, and during the last three years is declared to have been almost stationary. From 52,000,000 acres of six years ago, the United States has now come down to 48,000,000, and Canada and Austria have added only 1,500,000 acres in the last seven years, whereas their increase in the preceding seven years was 2,000,000. India's acreage has remained stationary for five years, and France's has decreased. Finally, the Russian wheat area is not maintaining its rate of increase of ten years ago, and even for Argentina the same statement holds good.

Worst Yet to Come.

In view of these figures the predication is hazarded that before long the present level of prices will be looked back upon as moderate, and it is also declared that England is returning to the conditions of the early '70s, when wheat cost $1.68 per bushel.

In a just published review of the year now closing, the European continental crop is estimated as showing 9 per cent deficiency, production having fallen off by 186,896,000 bushels, while the presumptive exports of North America, from crops of this season's growth, are considered likely to be 38,664,000 bushels less.

Prospects in the southern hemisphere and India, where the harvest is gathered from December to March, are none too bright, for a lack of rain in India and Australia renders it possible that the former will have nothing to export, and the latter a comparatively small amount.

Must Rely on Argentina.

The brunt of demand must, it is thought, fall on Argentina until supported by India or Australia. Hopes run high of a bumper harvest in South America, but conservative opinion here inclines to the expectation that no more wheat will be forthcoming from that quarter than in the calendar year just concluding and it is foreseen that the extra European demand will consume an unusual amount of the Argentine crop.

All told the wheat consumers of Europe are in an uncomfortable position. With prices in general rising steadily, Englishmen are also facing the probability of dear bread, and tariff reformers are not likely to fail to point out the moral as they see it.

HOLIDAY DULLNESS IN WHEAT.

Price Changes Narrow, but Operators Are Watching the Market with Some Nervousness.

Narrowness and pronounced dullness characterized last week's wheat market, practically all pit activity being of a local professional sort. Although moving within rather narrow bounds, considerable nervousness marked the course of values, influencing forces being about evenly divided. Prices at the finish Saturday showed ⅜@½c higher for the current month, ⅛c lower for May, and ¼c weaker for July, compared to those of the preceding period.

Progress in the Argentine again commanded principal attention, and advices were such as to encourage bears, although some messages indicated that rains had impeded harvesting and worked damage to the grain. There were bearish estimates on the Argentine exportable surplus, one giving a total of 180,000,000 bu, out of a yield of 231,000,000 bu. Conservative operators are inclined to consider this as extravagant, although they admit that the crop will be exceptionally heavy. The leading foreign markets have been inclined to easiness, principally on the favorable outlook in the South American country, although complaints have continued to pile up from Russia and India. The world's exports are running light, with America providing the bulk of grain.

Trade Watches Northwest Stocks.

There has been considerable talk of light stocks in the domestic and Canadian northwest, but the holdings at Duluth and Minneapolis, despite the recent heavy shipments from the former place, are well in excess of those of a year ago. The general domestic and export cash situation rules quiet, with buyers taking only enough for current requirements. Winter wheat conditions generally have been favorable, although the government report indicated a lower condition and a lighter sown area than a year ago. The Hessian fly has made its début, but to date it has done but little to arouse the trade. Some of the state reports are less favorable than the government's figures, but it is admitted that since the first of the month the crop has derived considerable benefit from rains. The government attributed the loss in condition to drought.

Toward midweek there was a snappy contest around the dollar mark for the May. The bears succeeded temporarily in holding the price under "par," but on Saturday a spurt of short covering lifted the price well above the coveted level. Advices from abroad invariably have touched on increasing offerings of La Plata cargoes, with a far from eager market. Bulls calculate that America will have disposed of the better part of its exportable surplus before the Argentine can ship freely to Europe.

Corn Dull and Firm.

Holiday dullness marked the corn market last week, but throughout the trade of bearish cast did not work hard to depress values. The character of the trade indicated a heavy short interest, which late in the week was stirred by unsettled weather conditions and loud complaints of poor returns. The movement from the country was only moderate and stocks in almost all directions are at low ebb. Farmers apparently are not disposed to sell freely under the prevailing level. It is not expected that the near future will witness much change in the movement from the farms. The storm last Saturday served to revive bullish endeavor, prices giving ready response to the supporting orders.

E. W. Wagner, one of the old time bulls, had this to say of corn: "As the movement is entirely from Illinois it can be shut off promptly because of short hauls, and that such a course will be pursued has been demonstrated. In the last few days receipts have averaged only a little over 200 cars a day, which is unusually light for this season of the year. And now comes stormy weather, with its traffic delays and other restrictions. Shippers are active buyers of cash corn, as are the industrial interests. It is an astonishing fact that at the windup of the largest crop ever raised, stocks all over the country are practically exhausted and old corn is selling in this market at 66c. If that is the outcome of a 3,000,000,000 bu yield, what can be expected from a crop 600,000,000 bu smaller and of inferior quality? The truth is that not enough corn has been raised this season to meet the requirements of the farm. Look at the state of Iowa, which will not have a bu to spare for shipment outside of its own boundaries. It has, at the most, a crop not to exceed 250,000,000 bu, or 138,000,000 bu less than last year."

Little Change in Oats.

Developments in last week's oats market presented little in the way of newness. Trade was tame, and prices moved within narrow bounds. The big bull interests appear to be standing pat, with bears unwilling to get into much action. The market presents a congested condition. Receipts are fairly large, but stocks of contract grain are light on almost all sides. Elevators indulged in moderate selling of the old style May oats, but the offerings were well absorbed. The general cash demand continues only fair, but the east seems to be willing to take liberally on all suggestions of easiness. The week end quotations were unchanged to a shade above the final prices of the previous week.

Provisions More Active.

Increased activity marked the trade in the provision market, and despite rather pronounced pressure from big packing interests prices were inclined to firmness the greater part of the period.

The devotion of readers to a magazine is indicated by their attitude when the price is raised.

In two successive years the price of THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL was raised, so that it is now fifty per cent. higher than it was. In spite of this, our circulation has never gone down to the one-million mark. In fact, this past fall, right in the face of business depression, we have added more than one hundred thousand copies to our circulation.

These facts may mean little to the casual reader, but to the far-sighted advertiser who understands what quality of circulation signifies, they mean a great deal.

What THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL can do for itself it can do for the worthy advertiser.

1,285,349 ALIENS ENTER IN A YEAR

Immigration Records for 1907 Show Increase of 25 Per Cent Over 1905.

JAP FIGURES DOUBLED.

Commissioner Sargent Urges the Adoption of Plans by Which Criminal Will Be Excluded.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The fiscal year 1907, which ended June 30 last, was a record breaker in the number of immigrants who came to America. The total number admitted during that period was 1,285,349, and 13,064 were rejected. The total amount of money brought into America by the immigrants was $25,599,893—an average of almost $20 per capita.

The outward passenger movement also exceeded that of previous years. During 1906 the total was 569,882—224,892 cabin and 344,989 other than cabin.

In his annual report, made public today, Frank P. Sargent, commissioner general of immigration and naturalization, says:

"The immigration for the year 1907 exceeded that for 1906 by 184,614, and that for the year 1905 by 258,850, or an increase over the year 1906 of more than 17 per cent and over the year 1905 of more than 25 per cent."

Many Go to Southern States.

The commissioner calls attention to the significance of the fact that many immigrants were landed in southern ports during the last year. He refers especially to a party of 473 Belgians—excellent types of immigrants—received at Charleston, S. C., having been induced to go there by the state authorities.

Where They Came From.

Statistics showing the tide of immigration from the various nations of the globe reveal the fact that twenty-seven countries showed increases and eleven decreases. The following figures show the movement from the chief countries:

| | | Increase over 1906. |
|---|---|---|
| Austria-Hungary | 338,452 | 73,314 |
| Bulgaria, Servia, and Montenegro | 11,359 | 6,698 |
| France | 9,731 | 345 |
| German Empire | 37,807 | 243 |
| Greece | 36,580 | 17,091 |
| Italy (including Sicily and Sardinia) | 285,731 | 12,611 |
| Russian Empire and Finland | 258,943 | 43,278 |
| Turkey | 20,767 | 11,257 |
| England | 56,637 | 7,146 |
| Ireland | 34,530 | *465 |
| Scotland | 19,740 | 3,874 |
| China | 961 | *583 |
| Japan | 30,226 | 16,391 |
| British North America | 189,918 | 14,855 |
| West Indies | 16,689 | 5,032 |

*Decrease.

"Slave Traffic" Under Control.

Commissioner Sargent urges the calling of an international conference to devise means by which criminals may be kept out of America. Under the passport system, he says, such organizations as the "Black Hand society" could not gain a foothold here, because the passport would have to show the record of the alien.

The passport plan, he says, would also put an end to the "White Slave traffic," though this evil, the commissioner declares, is under good control by the immigration officials.

Mr. Sargent advocates the enactment of legislation to permit medical examination of immigrants at the ports of embarkation, and that restrictive treaties be negotiated with Canada and Mexico.

Pennsylvania Road to Retrench.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The Pennsylvania railroad, with the beginning of the new year, will begin retrenchment in expenses along all lines. It was announced today that the bureau of publicity here has been ordered closed and the men transferred to Philadelphia, from where the work of publicity will be carried on from one office.

FISH FAVORS MEN OF STATE AS DIRECTORS OF THE I. C.

Says His Candidates for Board Positions Will Be from the Railroad's Home Territory.

It was stated by persons who talked with Stuyvesant Fish at the Auditorium Annex yesterday that he intended to name as his candidates for the Illinois Central directory three citizens of the state of Illinois and himself.

Over a year ago Mr. Fish asked in a directors' meeting whether it was not legally required that a majority of the board should be citizens of Illinois. The question was referred to counsel for the company. Early last summer an opinion was rendered to this effect:

> Inasmuch as the charter of the Illinois Central antedated the law requiring a majority of Illinois directors in an Illinois corporation, counsel was in doubt.

Mr. Fish's friends called attention to the fact that on Nov. 30 E. H. Harriman and seven of his fellow directors made a statement favoring the reëlection of Messrs. Astor, Harriman, and Hackstaff, and one thoroughly independent man for the remaining position.
